Island of Fear

As humans, we all fear something, and we deal with those fears in ways that match our personalities. In Lord of the Flies, William Golding shows the fears of Jack, Ralph, and Piggy and chooses specific ways for each to deal with his fears. Therefore, each of the three boys reacts to fear in his own unique way.

The first boy, Jack, believes that a beast truly does exist. He is afraid and admits it; however, he deals with his fear with aggressive violence. He chooses to hunt for the beast, arm himself with a spear, and practice killing it: "We're strong—we hunt! If there's a beast, we'll hunt it down! We'll close in and beat and beat and beat—!" (91). He also uses the fear of the beast to control and manipulate the other children. Because they fear the beast, they are more likely to listen to Jack and follow his orders. Furthermore, Jack fears Ralph's power over the group and Piggy's rational thought. This is because he knows that both directly conflict with his thirst for absolute power. He responds to these fears in his familiar, violent way. He physically and verbally abuses Piggy, and he argues with Ralph and questions his authority to such an extent that he ends up leaving the group. Jack eventually consolidates his power by forcing the last members of Ralph's group into his tribe and ordering a hunt for Ralph.

The Effect of Apartheid on Black Children Based on the Example Given in Sindiwe Magona s Mother to Mother. A Lesson Plan Sarah Wunderlich, 2017-06-22 Seminar paper from the year 2017 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 1.0 University of Koblenz Landau Anglistik course Teaching Literature Intercultural Encounters and Communicative Competence language English abstract Sindiwe Magona s Mother to Mother published in 1993 adds to the genre of post apartheid literature by transferring facts into fiction incorporating an actual historical event the murder of white American Amy Biehl in a black township into a fictional story putting all the struggles and consequences of the apartheid system at display without maintaining well established clichés and accusations The literary analysis of this paper will focus on the above mentioned aspect of the consequences and effects of apartheid on South African youths after apartheid had come to an end Therefore the topics of race racism and apartheid will be covered as the conceptual backbone to the analysis alongside with the aspects of motherhood and Fanon's Fact of Blackness theory. Additionally, a short overview on the historical context will be provided in order to understand the described struggles and developments. Furthermore, the main characters will be analyzed as well as central motifs accompanied by a closer look at the novel's composition and stylistic devices. The second part of this paper covers the didactic analysis. As the fictitious lesson in a German classroom at Gymnasium Oberstufe will deal with topics in the context of cross-cultural encounters, the focus will be set on apartheid and its consequences, aligning with the focus of the literary analysis.

Texts, Ideas, and the Classics S. J. Harrison, 2001 This book aims to promote a simple idea that in the contemporary context of the study and interpretation of classical literature, at universities, traditional classical scholarship and modern theoretical ideas need to work with each other in the common task of the interpretation of texts. Such dialogue and co-operation is not merely desirable; it is essential to ensure the survival and relevance of the study of classical literature in the twenty-first century. The purpose of this book is protreptic: to speak both to the sceptical and non-sceptical and to suggest to both the importance of the topic. The topics selected were chosen by a panel of distinguished practitioners as traditional areas of classical literary studies where the importance of co-operation of theory and scholarship could be shown in different ways by scholars who ranged widely in their views: literary language, narrative genre, historicism and reception, and history of scholarship.
