

The Most-Cited Statistical Papers

THOMAS P. RYAN* & WILLIAM H. WOODALL**

**National Institute of Standards and Technology, Gaithersburg, Maryland, USA. **Department of Statistics, Virginia Tech, Blacksburg, Virginia, USA*

ABSTRACT We attempt to identify the 25 most-cited statistical papers, providing some brief commentary on each paper on our list. This list consists, to a great extent, of papers that are on non-parametric methods, have applications in the life sciences, or deal with the multiple comparisons problem. We also list the most-cited papers published in 1993 or later. In contrast to the overall most-cited papers, these are predominately papers on Bayesian methods and wavelets. We briefly discuss some of the issues involved in the use of citation counts.

KEY WORDS: Citations, history of statistics.

Citations in General

There has been much discussion of the uses of citation counts in the literature, although not with respect to the statistics literature with the exceptions of Stigler (1994), Altman & Goodman (1994), and Theoharakis & Skordia (2003). Austin (1993) assessed the reliability of citation counts in making tenure and promotion decisions in academia, while Gilbert (1977) and Edge (1979) have considered citation counts as measures of the influence of research. See also Cronin (1984).

Edge (1979) criticized citation counts as being overused to measure intellectual linkages. Others have made similar criticisms. Despite such criticisms, however, the use of citation counts seems to be increasing. The National Research Council, for example, uses citation rates as one measure to rank PhD programmes in statistics and other fields. In addition, citation counts appear to be increasingly used in promotion decisions in academia, in addition to ranking scientific journals. Using ISI Journal Citation Reports, for example, one can determine that among the 71 journals in the Statistics and Probability category, Statistical Science ranked fifth in citation impact factor and 16th in the total number of citations received in 2002 with 1,051.

In attempting to determine the causal factors for highly cited papers, Donoho (2002) gave a list of suggestions for writing papers that would receive a large number of citations. At the top of his list was 'Develop a method which can be applied on statistical data of a kind whose prevalence is growing rapidly'. For example, if someone could develop 'the' approach to data mining, the paper would undoubtedly garner a huge number of citations.

Statistics of Income and Related Administrative Record Research, ... American Statistical Association. Annual Meeting, 1986      Statistical Policy Working Paper, 1978      U.S. Government Research Reports, 1962

REFLECTIONS ON THE SUBJECT OF ECONOMIC STATISTICS DONG QIU, 2018-10-26 This anthology is Professor Dong Qiu's reflections on economic statistics and related research. It includes economic statistics and economic reality, the connotation and extension of modern economic statistics, the reconstruction of economic statistics after the Cultural Revolution, and economic statistics at home and abroad. The main viewpoints in the book adhere to the broad view of scientific culture and opposing the concept of only mathematics adhering to the international vision and not blindly following the so-called mainstream of science, more attention paying to methodology than to the application of methods, adhering to the spirit of academic criticism. Doubts being raised in places where people do not doubt.      Statistics of Income and Related Administrative Record Research, ... American Statistical Association. Meeting, 1988      Evaluating Statistical Validity of Research Reports Amanda L. Golbeck, 1986      Research Paper, 1954      Papers and Proceedings American Sociological Society. Annual Meeting, 1927 Index to the Sociological papers and reports of the American Sociological Society 1906-1930 v. 25 p. 226-258      Statistical Research Methods Roy Sabo, Edward Boone, 2013-10-22 This textbook will help graduate students in non-statistics disciplines, advanced undergraduate researchers, and research faculty in the health sciences to learn use and communicate results from many commonly used statistical methods. The material covered and the manner in which it is presented describe the entire data analysis process from hypothesis generation to writing the results in a manuscript. Chapters cover among other topics one and two sample proportions, multi-category data, one and two sample means, analysis of variance, and regression. Throughout the text, the authors explain statistical procedures and concepts using a non-statistical language. This accessible approach is complete with real-world examples and sample write-ups for the Methods and Results sections of scholarly papers. The text also allows for the concurrent use of the programming language R, which is an open-source program created, maintained, and updated by the statistical community. R is freely available and easy to download.      Statistical Models in Toxicology Mehdi Razzaghi, 2020-05-21 Statistical Models in Toxicology presents an up-to-date and comprehensive account of mathematical statistics problems that occur in toxicology. This is an exciting time in toxicology because of the attention given by statisticians to the problem of estimating the human health risk for environmental and occupational exposures. The development of modern statistical techniques with solid mathematical foundations in the 20th century and the advent of modern computers in the latter part of the century gave way to development of many statistical models and methods to describe toxicological processes and attempts to solve the associated problems. Not only have the models enjoyed a high level of elegance and sophistication mathematically, they are widely used by industry and government regulatory agencies. Features: Focuses on describing the statistical models in environmental toxicology that facilitate the assessment of risk mainly in humans The properties and shortfalls of each model are discussed and its impact in the process of risk assessment is examined Discusses models that assess the risk of mixtures of chemicals Presents statistical models that are developed for risk estimation in different aspects of environmental toxicology including cancer and carcinogenic substances Includes models for developmental and reproductive toxicity risk assessment risk assessment in continuous outcomes and developmental neurotoxicity Contains numerous examples and exercises Statistical Models in Toxicology introduces a wide variety of statistical models that are currently utilized for dose response modeling and risk analysis These models are often developed based on design and regulatory guidelines of toxicological experiments The book is suitable for practitioners or as use as a textbook for advanced undergraduate or graduate students of mathematics and statistics
