Localization

Key Terms:

- Localization of a function: The idea that different areas of the brain are responsible for different behaviours, processes and activities.
- Acetylcholine (ACh) - is a neurotransmitter and can have both excitatory effects and inhibitory ones.
- physostigmine: is an ACh agonist;
- scopolamine: is an ACh antagonist;
- The hippocampus: is a structure in the brain responsible for, among other things, processing memories

Rogers and Kneser - The Hippocampus and spatial memory

Central Argument: This study demonstrates that memory is more complicated than the multi-store model proposed. We need two separate processes to secure our learning: encoding and consolidation. ACh has a role to play in determining which of these processes takes place, and when.

Aim: To investigate the role of acetylcholine (ACh) during the encoding and retrieval of spatial information.

Procedure: Rogers & Kesner used a number of rats that had been bred to be essentially the same surgically injected either scopolamine, physostigmine or saline into the hippocampi, and then put them into a maze. The rats were observed as they made their way from their starting box to their goal, which had a food reward in it. Every time a rat made a mistake e.g. going the wrong way or venturing too far into a corner, that mistake was counted. The total number of errors was recorded for each rat every time it went through the maze. If a rat learns its way through the maze, then we should expect to find that it takes less time, and fewer mistakes are made, each time it is put back into the enclosure.

Results: Rogers and Kesner found that rats with higher ACh levels (physostigmine) made fewer mistakes in a maze-learning task than those with lower levels, but overnight they didn't retain the routes they had learned (encoding enhanced, consolidation impaired). However, rats with lowered levels of ACh (scopolamine) remembered the routes much better overnight, but had made more mistakes during the initial learning phase. (ACh levels naturally fall at night when there is no need to encode new information. It is at this point that consolidation occurs more efficiently.)

Conclusion: ACh has two clear effects on memory processes: it facilitates the encoding of new information and inhibits the consolidation (long-term storage) of information. The reason for this two-fold function is to enable the efficient processing of information. One particular region of the hippocampus is involved in both the encoding and consolidation processes.

increasing attention given by governments and policy makers to children's transition to school and the associated need for educators families and communities to be supported in the process changes are often required to existing structures and pedagogy This book is framed around the notion of transition as a time of change for those involved in the transition process and as a time for reconceptualising beliefs policy and practice It explores transition from a number of international perspectives and raises issues around the coherence of how children perceive and respond to starting school the roles and expectations of parents developmental changes for parents supporting children with diverse learning needs how policy curriculum and pedagogy are conceived and implemented Readers will be informed about current practices and issues arising out of research in Europe Scandinavia the United Kingdom and Australia and will be stimulated to consider how they can change their own transition beliefs policies and practices Transition to school Contemporary Perspectives and Change is essential reading for researchers and educators and anyone wanting to know more about the transition to school and how to support young children their families and schools      The Personal and the Professional in Aid Work Anne-Meike

Fechter, 2016-03-16 This book considers how the personal and the professional dimensions are related and how they matter for aid work The contributions to this edited volume are based on the assumption that all actors are relevant in development including national and international aid workers A key question which the book explores is why the personal so often remains unacknowledged in development studies even though its salience for aid workers is well documented One possible reason is an implicit narrative of aid work as altruistic and self sacrificing which renders it inappropriate to devote much attention to the experiences of development professionals themselves In order to redress this this book critically considers the kind of difference they make and aims to understand how they respond to the challenges of their work The book explores their efficacy as human beings and employees with individual subjectivities social and cultural beliefs and practices and documents how these shape their involvement in development processes This book was published as a special issue of Third World Quarterly      When Grandparents Become Parents Rick Johnson, 2022-04-05 There's a quiet epidemic in our culture

there are myriad reasons for this the death of one s adult child parental drug addiction abusive living situations or incarceration to name a few the effects tend to be the same Senior citizens who expected to spend their golden years relaxing or traveling are now seeing their dreams dashed Those on limited incomes are feeling the strain and are frightened about their futures And the mental spiritual and physical exhaustion of parenting and disciplining children many decades their junior exacerbated by a technology gap is overwhelmingly real And yet through their sacrificial service these seniors are acting as kinsman redeemers for their grandchildren keeping them out of the foster care system and giving them the best shot possible for a successful life In When Grandparents Become Parents experienced author Rick Johnson details both the challenges and solutions these heroic seniors face offering strategies and resources including real advice from other grandparents to deal with major areas of stress incorporating humor common sense and practical advice along the way

Globally Competent Governance Michael Guo-Brennan, 2024-08-01 Globally Competent Governance explores promising policies and practices developed by local governments and other community leaders across the United States and beyond in their efforts to build welcoming and inclusive communities and globally competent governments. Cities of the future be they large regional metropolitan centers of commerce and political power, regional hubs that service central metropolitan regions or smaller suburban or rural centers that cater to agriculture or regional commerce will continue to evolve. Globalization and global mobility have greatly increased the cultural, ethnic, linguistic and religious diversity in cities and communities around the globe and demand local governments build welcoming and inclusive communities for all residents, particularly newcomers. Leaders both in and out of government must be prepared to respond to changing needs and manage any potential challenges this may create. To better understand what local officials are facing and what they are doing to manage change, the author presents data collected through surveys and individual interviews of local officials and other community influencers. Based on these findings, the book analyzes the current state of cities and makes policy recommendations for moving forward. This book will be of interest to advanced undergraduate and postgraduate students, researchers and academics in the fields of public policy, governance, immigration, community engagement, social welfare and political science as well as professionals in government and nongovernmental organizations. It will also interest professionals working with immigrants and in immigration policy.

The Mediatization of Culture and Society Stig Hjarvard, 2013 Mediatization has emerged as a key concept to reconsider old yet fundamental questions about the role and influence of media in culture and society. In particular, the theory of mediatization has proved fruitful for the analysis of how media spread to become intertwined with and influence other social institutions and cultural phenomena like politics, play and religion. This book presents a major contribution to the theoretical understanding of the mediatization of culture and society. This is supplemented by in-depth studies of the mediatization of politics. From party press to opinion industry. The mediatization of religion. From the faith of the church to the enchantment of the media. The mediatization of play. From bricks to bytes. The mediatization of habitus. The social character of a new individualism. Mediatization represents a new social condition in which the media have emerged as an important institution in society at the same time as they have become integrated into the very fabric of social and cultural life. Making use of a broad conception of the media as technologies, institutions and aesthetic forms, Stig Hjarvard considers how characteristics of both old and new media come to influence human interaction, social institutions and cultural imaginations.

Secular Power Europe and Islam Sarah Wolff, 2021-06-08 Secular Power Europe and Islam argues that secularism is not the central principle of international relations but should be considered as one belief system that influences international politics Through an exploration of Europe s secular identity an identity that is seen erroneously as normative author Sarah Wolff shows how Islam confronts the EU s existential anxieties about its security and its secular identity Islam disrupts Eurocentric assumptions about democracy and revolution and human rights Through three case studies Wolff encourages the reader to unpack secularism as a bedrock principle of IR and diplomacy This book argues that the EU s interest and diplomacy activities in relation to religion and to Islam specifically is shaped by the insistence on a European secular identity which should be reconsidered in areas of religion and foreign policy     A Social History of Iranian Cinema, Volume 4 Hamid Naficy,2011 In the fourth and final volume of A History of Iranian Cinema Hamid Naficy looks at the extraordinary efflorescence in Iranian film and other visual media since the Islamic Revolution
