A-Z of Learning Outside the Classroom Russell Grigg, Helen Lewis, 2016-04-07 Learning outside the classroom has been high on the political agenda for several years now but recent Ofsted reports indicate that this can be confined to termly or yearly trips as an extra. This book provides a convincing and readable promotion of regular outdoor learning. It draws on relevant research to reinforce that working in real environments benefits children's all round development cognitively, emotionally, physically and spiritually. This is illustrated through a wide range of engaging activities from how to make a scarecrow to interpreting a painting in a gallery from getting the best from a library visit to how best to attack a medieval castle. This practical guide for busy teachers will help them to link what they do in and out of the class. It's a must for every staffroom bookshelf.

English and Its Teachers Simon Gibbons, 2017-04-21 English and Its Teachers offers a historical overview of the development of secondary English teaching in schools over the past 50 years. Initially charting the rise of a new progressive approach in the 1960s, the book then considers the implications for the subject and its teachers of three decades of central policy intervention. Throughout, document and interview data are combined to construct a narrative that details the fascinating and at times turbulent history. The book is divided into two main parts: The age of invention and The age of intervention. The first of these sections details how innovative English teachers and academics helped to develop a new model. The second section explores how successive governments have sought to shape English through policy. A final part draws comparisons with the teaching of the subject in other major English speaking nations and considers what the future might hold. English and Its Teachers is a valuable resource for those interested in the teaching of English in secondary schools from new entrants to the profession to experienced teachers and academics working in the sector.
