Comparing Refugees and South Africans in the Urban Informal Sector Crush, Jonathan,Tawodzera, Godfrey,2017-10-28 This report compares the business operations of over 2 000 South Africans and refugees in the urban informal economy and systematically dispels some of the myths that have grown up around their activities First the report takes issue with the perception that South Africans are inexperienced and unmotivated participants in the informal economy Many have years of experience and have successfully grown their businesses Second it contests the view that refugees enjoy a competitive advantage because they come to South Africa with inherent talent and already honed skills On the contrary over 80% of those surveyed had no prior informal sector experience and learned their skills on the job and after coming to South Africa Third the report shows that there is fierce competition in the urban informal sector between and within the two groups However business competition between refugees and South Africans is mitigated by the fact that they tend to dominate different sections of the informal economy with South Africans dominant in the food sector and refugees in the household products and personal services sectors Finally the report takes issue with recent arguments that all informal sector businesses are equally at risk from robbery extortion and other crimes It shows that South Africans are affected but that refugees are far more vulnerable than their South African counterparts The report therefore confirms that xenophobia and xenophobic violence are major threats to refugees seeking a livelihood in the informal sector especially if they venture into informal settlements

New Perspectives in Basin Analysis Karen L. Kleinspehn,Chris Paola,2012-12-06 In the extensive field of earth sciences with its many subdisciplines the transfer of knowledge is primarily established via personal communication during meetings by reading journal articles or by consulting books Because more information is available than can be assimilated it is necessary for the individual to search selectively Books take more time from the inception of an idea until publication than any of the other means of communication mentioned As a consequence their function is somewhat different Many good books are a compilation of up to date knowledge and serve as reference or instruction manuals Some books are a collection of previously published papers dealing with a certain topic while others may basically provide large sets of data or examples The Frontiers in Sedimentary Geology series was established both for students and practicing earth scientists who wish to either stay abreast of the most recent ideas or developments or to become familiar with an important topic in the field of sedimentary geology The series attempts to deal with subjects that are in the forefront of both scientific and economic interest The treatment of a subject in an individual volume should be a combination of topical regional and interdisciplinary approaches Although these three terms can be defined separately in reality they should flow into each other A topical treatment should relate to a major category of sedimentary geology Petrology

,2000 Water Pollution XIV S. Hernández, S. Mambretti, 2018-08-21 Water pollution problems are of continued importance around the world with an impact on both populated areas and the environment This volume consists of papers presented at the 14th International Conference in the series of Monitoring Modelling and Management of Water Pollution The environmental problems caused by the increase of pollutant loads discharged into natural water bodies requires the formation of a framework for regulation and control This framework needs to be based on scientific results that relate pollutant discharge with changes in water quality The results of these studies allow industry to apply more efficient methods of controlling and treating waste loads and water authorities to enforce appropriate regulations regarding this matter Environmental problems are essentially interdisciplinary Engineers and scientists working in this field must be familiar with a wide range of issues including the physical processes of mixing and dilution chemical and biological processes mathematical modelling data acquisition and measurement to name but a few In view of the scarcity of available data it is important that experiences are shared on an international basis Thus a continuous exchange of information between scientists from different countries is essential Topics covered include Water contamination Monitoring modelling and forecasting Water management Wastewater management Groundwater and aquifers Flood damage Freshwater quality Coastal and offshore pollution Health risk studies Agricultural contamination Industrial pollution Water reuse Emerging technologies Socio economic political consequences Population and climate change Education and training
