Solomon, 2012-08-14 Despite the best hopes of the past half century black urban pathologies persist in America The inner cities remain concentrations of the uneducated unemployed underemployed and unemployable Many fail to stay in school and others choose lives of drugs violence and crime Most do not marry leading to single parent households and children without a father figure The cycle repeats itself generation after generation It is easy to argue that nothing works given the policy failures of the past For Lewis D Solomon fatalism is not acceptable A complex and interrelated web of issues plague inner city black males joblessness the failure of public education crime mass incarceration and drugs the collapse of married two parent families and negative cultural messages Rather than abandon the black urban underclass Solomon presents strategies and programs to rebuild lives and revitalize America s inner cities These approaches are neither government oriented nor dependent on federal intervention and they are not futuristic Focusing on rehabilitative efforts Solomon describes workforce development prisoner reentry and the role of nonprofit organizations Solomon s strategies focus on the need to improve the quality of America s workforce through building human capital at the socioeconomic bottom The goal is to enable more people to fend for themselves thereby weaning them from dependency on public sector handouts Solomon shows a path forward for inner city black males Thinking with Feeling Douglas P. Newton, 2014-03-05 Are emotions good or bad for thinking and learning Have you ever wondered why a good lesson of one year falls flat in another Why do students behave the way they do Teachers are expected to foster productive thought yet the neglect of emotion in the classroom in favour of intellect means teaching and learning is often not as effective as it might be Thinking with Feeling explores what we mean by productive thought its interrelationship with mood and emotions how teachers can manage that interaction to improve teaching and learning and what teacher trainers could do about it Synthesising the most important international research in the field it offers a framework for productive purposeful thought deduction understanding creative thinking wise thinking and critical thinking and explains how mood and emotion can support and also impede learning It considers the effect of the interplay of emotion and intellect on classroom behaviour on students public performance and performance in tests and how emotional labour can affect the teacher Illustrated with examples from practice this challenging thoughtful study offers education professionals a basis for understanding the interaction of emotions and cognition and making it a successful partnership in order to improve teaching and learning

Karl Pearson Theodore M. Porter, 2004 Theodore Porter's portrait of Pearson extends from religious crisis and sexual tensions to metaphysical and even mathematical anxieties Pearson sought to reconcile reason with enthusiasm and to achieve the impersonal perspective of science without sacrificing complex individuality Even as he longed to experience nature directly and intimately he identified science with renunciation and positivistic detachment Porter finds a turning point in Pearson's career where his humanistic interests gave way to statistical ones in his Grammar of Science 1892 in which he attempted to establish scientific method as the moral educational basis for a refashioned culture
