Topic 2 Electric cells as energy systems

Week 2

✓ Let's learn Terminology!

Cell: a device that produces electricity through chemical reactions.

Volt (V): the unit of measurement of the energy that a cell can produce.

✓ Let's Read!

Study through the prescribed material your teacher will refer you to!

✓ Let's sum it up!

We use cells to produce electric current. This is done when the substances in the cell react and separate positive and negative charges so that one terminal has an excess of electrons (negative terminal). The other terminal has a shortage of electrons (positive terminal). All cells consist of two metal terminals connected to the reacting substances. Between them is a conducting paste that allows charges to flow through the cell when it is connected to a circuit.

The amount of energy that a cell can produce is called the potential difference or voltage. It is measured with a voltmeter and is measured in volts (V).

Please highlight important points as you go through this with your teacher!

Water Systems towards New Future Challenges Helena M. Ramos, 2021-03-09 This book comprises components associated with smart water which aims at the exploitation and building of more sustainable and technological water networks towards the water energy nexus and system efficiency The implementation of modeling frameworks for measuring the performance based on a set of relevant indicators and data applications and model interfaces provides better support for decisions towards greater sustainability and more flexible and safer solutions The hydraulic management and structural models represent the most effective and viable way to predict the behavior of the water networks under a wide range of conditions of demand and system failures The knowledge of reliable parameters is crucial to develop approach models and therefore positive decisions in real time to be implemented in smart water systems On the other hand the models of operation in real time optimization allow us to extend decisions to smart water systems in order to improve the efficiency of the water network and ensure more reliable and flexible operations maximizing cost environmental and social savings associated with losses or failures The data obtained in real time instantly update the network model towards digital water models showing the characteristic parameters of pumps valves pressures and flows as well as hours of operation towards the lowest operating costs in order to meet the requirement objectives for an efficient system
