

Q. Assess the extent to which one or more countries that you have studied are energy secure. (12 Marks)

Countries that are energy secure are countries that produce, or have the capability to produce, more energy than they consume. This usually means having a significant surplus of energy and thus exporting spare energy to other countries which are not energy secure (energy insecure) for a profit. It can be hard to define some countries as being energy secure due to constantly changing governmental policies and politics, as well as public approval.

One country that can definitely be considered energy secure is Norway. The Norwegian government has an interventionist policy, meaning that they go out of their way to prevent foreign TNCs from owning their sources of energy, such as oil reserves, waterfalls, forests and fields. This prevents foreign private ownership which means the government has a far more direct control over what kind of energy they use. Partly due to this, as well as Norway's mountainous landscape and high amounts of rainfall, have allowed Norway to use mostly Hydroelectric energy sites (HEP sites) to produce clean, renewable, sustainable energy. It makes up for 97.5% of all of their renewable energy or 95.8% of its total energy mix. There are disadvantages to this however. Although the cost of HEP sites after capital investment are fairly cheap, the additional cost of transporting the energy from the remote mountains to the cities is actually expensive. However, as long as they have the finance available to do this - which they'd appear to do with schemes like sovereign wealth fund - it does not take away from their energy security. Furthermore, they have large deposits of gas and even coal, but especially oil, in the North Sea - a lot of which is in Norwegian territorial waters, a lot of which they export - which they could use themselves if they absolutely had to.

A country that is less energy secure is the UK. They import a lot of their energy from abroad. They used to be even less secure, when most of their oil came from the Middle East - a largely (although not completely) politically, militarily and economically unstable region of the world. However since the discovery of oil reserves in the North sea, they've been able to extract and import from closer to home. Unfortunately, the country's discovery of oil there also led to declaration of its nuclear power
