Tree-kangaroos of Australia and New Guinea Roger William Martin, 2005 To many people the suggestion that a kangaroo could live up a tree is fantasy Yet in the rainforests of Far North Queensland and New Guinea there are extraordinary kangaroos that do just that Many aspects of these marsupials anatomy and biology suggest a terrestrial kangaroo ancestor Yet no one has so far come forward with a convincing explanation of how why and when mammals that was so superbly adapted for life on the ground should end up back in the trees This book reviews the natural history and biology of tree kangaroos from the time of their first discovery by Europeans in the jungles of West Papua in 1826 right up to the present day covering the latest research being conducted in Australian and New Guinea Combining information from a number of disparate disciplines the author sets forth the first explanation of this apparent evolutionary conundrum Features Provides a fascinating and readable account of an unusual evolutionary conundrum Written by a field biologist with more than a decade s experience working with tree kangaroos Macropods Graeme Coulson, Mark Eldridge, 2010-02-03 This book covers the proceedings of a major 2006 symposium on macropods that brought together the many recent advances in the biology of this diverse group of marsupials including research on some of the much neglected macropods such as the antilopine wallaroo the swamp wallaby and tree kangaroos More than 80 authors have contributed 32 chapters which are grouped into four themes genetics reproduction and development morphology and physiology ecology and management The book examines such topics as embryonic development immune function molar progression and mesial drift locomotory energetics non shivering thermogenesis mycophagy habitat preferences population dynamics juvenile mortality in drought harvesting overabundant species road kills fertility control threatened species cross fostering translocation and reintroduction It also highlights the application of new techniques from genomics to GIS Macropods is an important reference for academics and students researchers in molecular and ecological sciences wildlife and park managers and naturalists Language, Knowledge and Pedagogy Frances Christie, J. New Advances and Contributions to Forestry Research Dr. Andrew A. Oteng-Amoako, 2012-04-27 New Advances and Contributions to Forestry Research consists of 14 chapters divided into three sections and is authored by 48 researchers from 16 countries and all five continents. Section Whither the Use of Forest Resources authored by 16 researchers describes negative and positive practices in forestry. Forest is a complex habitat for man, animals, insects, and micro organisms and their activities may impact positively or negatively on the forest. This complex relationship is explained in the section Forest and Organisms Interactions consisting of contributions made by six researchers. Development of tree plantations has been man's response to forest degradation and deforestation caused by human, animals, and natural disasters. Plantations of beech, spruce, Eucalyptus, and other species are described in the last section. Amelioration of Dwindling Forest Resources Through Plantation Development, a section consisting of five papers authored by 20 researchers. New Advances and Contributions to Forestry Research will appeal to forest scientists, researchers, and allied professionals. It will be of interest to those who care about forest and who subscribe to the adage that the last tree dies with the last man on our planet. I recommend it to you. Enjoy reading it, save the forest, and save life. Kangaroos Terence J. Dawson, 1995. In this, the only up-to-date accessible and scientifically based book on Australia's principal icon, internationally known kangaroo researcher Terry Dawson gets to the heart of what makes these animals special. He shows how many features of their biology, such as their reproductive patterns, social structure, and locomotor characteristics, confer great advantages in their adaptations to Australia's harsh climate and demanding environment. Besides covering widely the biology, ecology, and behaviour of the ten different types of kangaroos, Professor Dawson compares European and Aboriginal cultural attitudes towards them. He explores such issues as hunting habits, conservation, kangaroos as agricultural pests, the economics of kangaroo ranching, and the use of their products.

The Endeavour Journals John Macdonald, Clare MacDonald, 2024-05-16. In 1770, the H.M.S. Bark Endeavour arrived in New Holland, Australia, the Continent of Smoke. On board were Lieutenant James Cook, gentleman naturalist Joseph Banks, natural history artist Sydney Parkinson, and Midshipman James Magra. For the first time, this book combines the journals of these men to present a single cohesive narrative that brings the story to life as never before. The journals are complimented by over 300 images, including charts, coastal profiles, plans of harbors, and many original drawings executed during the voyage of the animals, people, and landscape unique to the region. Of the many titles that are available concerning Cook and his voyaging, few focus on Cook's New Holland experience. Most commonly, these titles are interpretative accounts and heavily weighted with the author's opinion. However, here the story of New Holland is told in the words of the explorers themselves, containing first-hand accounts of all the elements of drama, risk, and first discovery. Focusing particularly on the contact with the Indigenous people and how they were first described by Europeans, this is an adaptation of the discovery story made accessible to the general reader as well as the historian without compromising the integrity of the original document. These adventurers were men of their own time, constrained by the common beliefs that fashioned the lives of people two hundred and fifty years
