Norman Rule in Normandy, 911-1144 Mark S. Hagger,2017

In around 911 the Viking adventurer Rollo was granted the city of Rouen and its surrounding district by the Frankish King Charles the Simple Two further grants of territory followed in 924 and 933 But while Frankish kings might grant this land to Rollo and his son William Longsword these two Norman dukes and their successors had to fight and negotiate with rival lords hostile neighbours kings and popes in order to establish and maintain their authority over it This book explores the geographical and political development of what would become the duchy of Normandy and the relations between the dukes and these rivals for their lands and their subjects

It looks too at the administrative machinery the dukes built to support their regime from their toll collectors and vicomtes an official similar to the English sheriff to the political theatre of their courts and the buildings in which they were staged At the heart of this exercise are the narratives that purport to tell us about what the dukes did and the surviving body of the dukes diplomas Neither can be taken at face value and both tell us as much about the concerns and criticisms of the dukes subjects as they do about the strength of the dukes authority The diplomas in particular because most of them were not written by scribes attached to the dukes households but rather by their beneficiaries can be used to recover something of how the dukes subjects saw their rulers as well as something of what they wanted or needed from them Ducal power was the result of a dialogue and this volume enables both sides to speak Mark Hagger is a senior lecturer in medieval history at Bangor University
