Idph Marketing Guide:

Guide to the Healthcare Industry Karen L. Pellegrin, 2024-05-08 Healthcare's advancements are undeniable but delivering good value remains a challenge. Costs rise while quality improvements lag leading some to call for removing business from healthcare entirely. This book offers a different perspective inviting students and professionals to consider the potential of evidence-based business practices to improve healthcare and reduce costs. This engaging guide explores the unique complexities of the healthcare industry highlighting why it's ripe for disruption through innovative business solutions. By delving into how traditional models might not fit healthcare perfectly the book paves the way for understanding how better business practices can unlock the potential for higher quality care at a lower cost.

Tovian, 2013-06-29 For two decades I have been responding to questions about the nature of health psychology and how it differs from medical psychology behavioral medicine and clinical psychology From the beginning I have taken the position that any application of psychological theory or practice to problems and issues of the health system is health psychology I have repeatedly used an analogy to Newell and Simon's General Problem Solver program of the late 1950s and early 1960s which had two major functional parts in addition to the executive component One was the problem solving core the procedural competence the other was the representation of the problem environment In the analogy the concepts knowledge and techniques of psychology constitute the core competence the health system in all its complexity is the problem environment A health psychologist is one whose basic competence in psychology is augmented by a working knowledge of some aspect of the health system Quite apparently there are functionally distinct aspects of health psychology to the degree that there are meaningful subdivisions in psychological competence and significantly different microenvironments within the health system I hesitate to refer to them as areas of specialization as the man who gave health psychology its formal definition Joseph Matarazzo has said that there are no specialties in psychology cited in the editors preface to this book

Blueprint for a Healthier America Jeffrey Levi, 2009-11 Even though America spends more than 2 trillion annually on health care tens of millions of Americans suffer every day from preventable diseases The current public health PH system is broken It is chronically underfunded and outdated Modernizing public health is urgently needed This Blueprint is a fed policy guide with expert recommend to revitalize the nation's ability to protect the health of all Americans It contains A vision statement that outlines principles to make disease and injury prevention a cornerstone of America's health policies Recommend to improve the infrastructure of America's PH system Recommend for ongoing initiatives and projects and a Paper that defines the need and scope for a policy agenda to modernize PH Illus The Essential Biotech Investment Guide Chilung Mark Tang, 2002 This invaluable book tells the reader how to invest in the healthcare biotechnology and life sciences sector one of the fast growing sectors of the US economy Aimed at biotech investors as well as bioentrepreneurs and venture capitalists it has been written from the perspectives of risk management and asset management allocation It strives to teach readers how to fish rather than giving them fish The author has over ten years of Wall Street experience in biotech research investment banking and asset management He holds an MBA in Finance and a PhD in Biochemistry

Food Safety for Farmers Markets: A Guide to Enhancing Safety of Local Foods Judy A. Harrison, 2017-10-20 This book describes practices used on farms and in farmers markets selling foods directly to consumers in U S and international markets It identifies hazards associated with those practices that could put consumers at increased risk for foodborne illness It also provides tools for identifying hazards on farms and in markets and guidance for establishing food safe markets The local food movement inspired by initiatives such as the USDA's Know Your Farmer Know Your Food Farm to School Farm to Pre school and The People's Garden is sweeping the country Nowhere is this interest more evident than at farmers markets The number of farmers markets has increased almost 400% since the early 1990s with over 8 600 farmers markets listed in the USDA s market directory in 2016 Many of the customers for local markets are senior adults people who may have health concerns and mothers with young children shopping for foods they perceive to be healthier and safer than those available in grocery stores This means that many of the customers may be in population groups that are most at risk for foodborne illness and the serious complications that can result In surveys however farmers selling directly to consumers self reported practices that could increase risk for foodborne illnesses These included use of raw manure as fertilizer without appropriate waiting periods between application and harvest as outlined in the National Organic Program a lack of sanitation training for farm workers handling produce a lack of proper cleaning and sanitizing of surfaces that come in contact with produce and use of untested surface water for rinsing produce before taking it to market Surveys of market managers found that many had limited experience and most had no food safety plans for their markets Observational studies in markets have corroborated self reported practices that could increase foodborne illness risks including lack of handwashing lack of access to well maintained toilet and handwashing facilities use of materials that cannot be cleaned and sanitized appropriately and lack of temperature control for foods that must have time and temperature controlled for safety These potential food safety risks are not only seen in U S farmers markets but also have been identified in international markets This book is unique in that it provides evidence based information about food safety hazards and potential risks associated with farmers markets It presents an overview of farm and market practices and offers guidance for enhancing food safety on farms and in markets for educators farmers producers vendors and market managers Dr Judy A Harrison is a Professor in the Department of Foods and Nutrition at the University of Georgia UGA where she has been named a Walter Bernard Hill Fellow for distinguished achievement in public service and outreach Serving as a food safety specialist for UGA Cooperative Extension she has provided 25 years of food safety education for a variety of audiences across the food system The ...
