Chapter 4: Infancy: Physical Development

Physical Growth and Development

Sequences of Physical Development

- Cephalocaudal- development proceeds from the upper part of the head to the lower parts of the body
 - Head develops faster than the rest of the body during embryonic stage
- Proximodistal- development proceeds outward from the trunk
 - Brain and spinal cord follow a central axis
 - Nerves need to be in place before infants can gain control over arms and legs

Growth Patterns in Height and Weight

- Height gains:
 - Growth occurs in spurts and does not follow smooth growth chart
 - Are about 50% in the first year
- Weight gains:
 - Five months - Double the birth weight
 - First year - Triple the birth weight
 - Second year - Gain four to seven pounds

Changes in Body Proportions

- Head: About one-fourth the length of body in neonates, gradually diminishes in proportion to the rest of the body
- Arms and legs: Equal in length and arms grow more rapidly than the legs at first
- Failure to thrive (FTT)- Childhood disorder characterized by variable eating and inadequate gains in weight
- Typically, an adult's arms are nearly three times the length of the head.
- The legs are about four times as long.
- Among neonates, each arm or leg is only about one and a half times the length of the head.
- FTT is linked not only to slow physical growth but also to cognitive, behavioral, and emotional problems
