

pH Properties of Buffer Solutions

Flinn AP Chemistry Laboratory #19

Introduction

One of the most important applications of acids and bases in chemistry and biology is that of buffers. A buffer solution resists rapid changes in pH when acids and bases are added to it. Every living cell contains natural buffer systems to maintain the constant pH needed for proper cell function. Many consumer products are also buffered to safeguard their activity. What are buffers made of? How do buffers maintain the delicate pH balance needed for life and health?

Concepts

- Buffers
- Weak acid-weak base
- Conjugate acid-base pairs
- Dissociation constant
- Ideal buffer
- Background

The ability of buffers to resist changes in pH when acid or base is added is a result of their chemical composition. All buffers contain a mixture of a conjugate acid-base pair; either a weak acid (HA) and its conjugate base (A⁻), or a weak base (B), and its conjugate acid (BH⁺). Weak acids and bases both dissociate slightly in water (Reactions 1 and 2).

weak acid conjugate base

weak base conjugate acid

These reactions are reversible and both the weak acid and its conjugate base or the weak base and its conjugate acid are present in solution.

The equilibrium constant expression for these dissociation reactions are:

$$K_a = [\text{H}_3\text{O}^+][\text{A}^-]/[\text{HA}] \quad \text{Equation 1}$$

Buffers control pH because the two buffering compounds, either HA and A⁻ or B and BH⁺, are able neutralize both acids and bases added to the solution.

Manov, 1947 For the purpose of calibrating pH meters such as the hydrogen calomel and the glass calomel type it is necessary to have on hand a number of buffer solutions of certified pH value covering the ranges of temperature and pH over which it is desired to work Of the large number of compounds both organic and inorganic known to the chemist comparatively few however have the requisite properties such as uniformity and reproducibility of composition freedom from deliquescence or efflorescence ease of preparation and purification and good buffer capacity which would make them acceptable as buffer materials In the past thirty years the concept of the term pH underwent a change from that of the simple definition of $\text{pH} = -\log C_{\text{H}}$ to the more modern definition of $\text{pH} = -\log a_{\text{H}}$ when it was realized that the potential of the hydrogen electrode was a measure of the activity of the hydrogen ion rather than of its concentration Paradoxically however the activity of single ions cannot be determined from experiment without the use of some simplifying assumptions it is therefore impossible to establish a pH scale on a rigorous thermodynamic basis This point will be discussed later The problem of purification of salts is one primarily of analytical chemistry and the materials can be tested to determine their relative purity and reproducibility by any self consistent method
