Literature Fang Tang, 2019-12-03 This book explores the use of literary fantasy in the construction of identity and home in contemporary diasporic Chinese women s literature It argues that the use of fantasy acts as a way of undermining the power of patriarchy and unsettling fixed notions of home The idea of home explored in this book relates to complicated struggles to gain a sense of belonging as experienced by marginalized subjects in constructing their diasporic identities which can best be understood as unstable shifting and shaped by historical conditions and power relations Fantasy is seen to operate in the corpus of this book as a literary mode as defined by Rosemary Jackson Literary fantasy offers a way to rework ancient myths fairy tales ghost stories and legends it also subverts conventional narratives and challenges the power of patriarchy and other dominant ideologies Through a critical reading of four diasporic Chinese women authors namely Maxine Hong Kingston Adeline Yen Mah Ying Chen and Larissa Lai this book aims to offer critical insights into how their works re imagine a home through literary fantasy which leads beyond nationalist and Orientalist stereotypes and how essentialist conceptions of diasporic culture are challenged by global geopolitics and cultural interactions Multiple Translation Communities in Contemporary Japan Beverley Curran, Nana Sato-Rossberg, Kikuko Tanabe, 2015-04-17 Multiple Translation Communities in Contemporary Japan offers a collection of essays that 1 deepens the understanding of the cultural and linguistic diversity of communities in contemporary Japan and how translation operates in this shifting context and circulates globally by looking at some of the ways it is theorized and approached as a significant social cultural or political practice and harnessed by its

Hotel Puta Daniel Briggs, 2022-08-01 Hotel Puta is an unflinching and brutal account of the workings of a luxury brothel in Madrid The text is based on 18 months of careful and risky covert ethnographic observation in the brothel in which I worked directly for a man known as el jefe Pablo by promoting the online porn forums and as an English teacher Over the project period I worked in the brothel a couple of nights a week doing these duties and came to know the women who worked there and the security staff Pablo s closest friends and family and his inner circle of contacts and political support buffers The book follows the stories of some of the women predominantly the narrative of Gabriela involved in the sale of sex It also examines Pablo the hotel manager as I also got an intimate insight into how his incessant focus on business fed his aspiration for a class upgrade through the purchase of expensive cars shopping and lavish holidays The context for the lives of these people are the expansion of the sex industry and prominence of internet porn which manufactures desire in an era of neoliberal consumer society The clients who are generally well off men work long hours and feel dislocated from their families yet are bound by a societal injunction to enjoy and nurture their sense of personal indulgence and self gratification Their manufactured fantasies and desires are played out with the women who in the face of austerity politics are bereft of formal labour market opportunities which catapults many into precarious situations in which selling sex becomes a profitable option This has crudely mixed with cultural change in Spain in the wake of increased neoliberal economics which emphasises autonomous meritocracy while at the same time has hollowed out notions of culture family and tradition To cite this book Briggs D 2022 Hotel Puta A hardcore ethnography of a luxury brothel London RJ4All Publications ISBN 978 1 911634 64 5 DOI 10 13140 RG 2 2 25950 51522 Reviews In this fascinating book Daniel Briggs uses his ethnographic skills covertly in a project that he stumbled onto inadvertently He works undertaking several roles in a luxury brothel in Madrid In the pages that follow he shines a light on the management the women and the clients who inhabit this hidden milieu and situates their lives in the broader context of a neoliberal consumer culture that convinces us of our right to enjoy regardless of the harm it may cause others Anthony Lloyd Teesside University In this excellent new book Daniel Briggs successfully penetrates the barriers and takes the reader inside a contemporary brothel to provide new insights into how prostitution works in a luxury context and exposes the day to day life of female sex workers It does not shy away from the realities of prostitution but meticulously documents the lived experiences of female sex workers through a detailed ethnographic study of a luxury brothel in Madrid Sam Barnes Arden University This honest and timely account of a new form of slavery presents the reader with a much needed shocking experience RJ4All Publications is honoured to be hosting this book as part of its RJSeries joining the debate on power Through ethnographic observation and evidence based arguments Briggs takes a bold step in helping us realise the growing phenomenon of sex slavery and the impact of privilege on social justice This book is highly recommended to anyone with research interests as well as personal questions around gender inequality power abuse and individual empowerment Prof Dr Theo Gavrielides RJ4All Publications Editor in Chief
