research over the recent decades have been plentiful and often successful with 5 year survival rates increasing almost uniformly across the board. The advent of new technologies has presented solutions for yesterday's barriers to research allowing us to leap forward in our ability to prevent, diagnose and treat various cancers. Developments in omics studies have provided new insights into the underlying molecular basis of different cancers and their subtypes greatly enhancing our understanding of the vast heterogeneity that exists. Progress in our ability to diagnose and detect early stage cancers has resulted in numerous screening and prevention programs. Novel imaging technologies allow us to study and comprehend cancers with greater clarity than ever before. Although the field as a whole has experienced many successes, arduous challenges must be overcome in order to see continued success. The truth of the matter is cancer related deaths continue to rise in number worldwide especially in lower and middle income countries. It is evident that there is still a lot of work to be done. This Frontiers in Oncology Special Issue marks the 1st edition of a collection of selected articles published in the journal over the course of the previous calendar year highlighting ongoing research and advances being carried out in the different disciplines of cancer research. Yearbook of Varna University of Management, 2019-07-03 Volume XII Includes scientific articles and reports from the 15th International Scientific Conference on the topic of The science in help of business. Psoriasis is a chronically relapsing inflammatory skin disorder affecting about 2% of the worldwide population. The disease is associated with important systemic manifestations including cardiovascular comorbidities and metabolic syndrome. In addition, about 30% of patients develop joint inflammation known as psoriatic arthritis (PsA). Our knowledge on the pathogenesis of psoriasis has dramatically expanded in the last decade suggesting the existence or co-existence of both auto-immune and auto-inflammatory components. Skin lesions develop from a complex interplay between keratinocytes, vascular endothelium, dendritic cells and T cells generating a self-sustaining inflammatory cycle. Within this cycle, epidermal CD8+ T lymphocytes specific for self-antigens may represent the major autoimmune mechanism. Despite the recent progress in the comprehension of the pathogenesis of psoriasis, many questions remain open ranging from the plaque initiating events to the characterization of the autoimmune/auto-inflammatory components of the disease. The mechanisms that link cutaneous psoriasis to its extra-cutaneous and systemic manifestations also remain vague. In this Research Topic we invited top scientists to summarize the front-line research in the field of immunology of cutaneous psoriasis and its systemic and joint manifestations. Our intention was to integrate the pillar concepts of psoriasis immunopathology with the most novel insights aiming at providing an advanced view of this rapidly evolving and fascinating field. Accomplishments, Collaborative Projects and Future Initiatives in Breast Cancer Genetic Predisposition Paolo
