Acid Mine Drainage and its Governance in the Gauteng City-Region Kerry Bobbins, 2015-05-29 Acid mine drainage AMD has generated an enormous amount of media interest and public concern in the Gauteng City Region GCR over the last decade. However, it has been framed as a narrow technical concern with government action being directed towards securing the necessary engineering and processing solutions as quickly as possible to prevent decant and treat acid mine water to industrial standards. This has arguably limited the scope for full discussion and debate on the impacts of AMD particularly for the environment and this bears implications for how AMD has been managed in the GCR. Government's immediate short and long term interventions to address AMD have been set out as a straightforward solution but over time more complex environmental concerns have emerged. Becoming more evident over the last few years is that one of the main impacts of AMD will be its effect on the overall water security in the Vaal River System VRS on which the GCR relies for its supply of potable water. Limits on water abstraction from the VRS together with the increasing need to maintain the overall water quality in the system through dilution and treatment activities means that AMD is beginning to manifest as a binding constraint on economic development and a burden on society in particular via escalating costs for water consumers. Fiscal constraints are likely to see GCR residents and businesses pick up more and more of the costs associated with the treatment of AMD through the format of increased municipal tariffs. With final decisions on municipal tariffs now pending, the broader yet invisible impacts of AMD loom large. This means that the debate has moved far beyond the issue of predicted decant in each of the Witwatersrand's mining basins. Water security for the GCR and who will carry the costs associated with the long term treatment of AMD have instead taken centre stage. This paper carefully updates the historical record on AMD since the publishing of a GCRO Provocation on the issue in 2010. In doing so, it argues that the way in which AMD has been governed raises a flag around how the political economy of an issue such as AMD should be understood, publicly debated and managed. In particular, it suggests that the governance of an environmental challenge such as AMD is not only about finding a technical solution. The lack of platforms to ensure well-informed public deliberation, especially over such issues as who will pay and how must be addressed to ensure more equitable and transparent decision making. In light of the broader mine waste legacy inherited by the GCR and the strong likelihood of environmental contamination becoming more commonplace in the future, these concerns are not only limited to AMD. They will only grow in importance over time.

OECD Territorial Reviews: The Gauteng City-Region, South Africa 2011 OECD, 2011-11-10 Against the backdrop of South Africa's achievements since the fall of apartheid, this Review evaluates measures to position economic development policy and to confront economic inequality in the Johannesburg-Pretoria region.

Insurgent Diplomat - Civil Talks or Civil War? Aziz Pahad, 2014-10-13 Long before the official negotiations to end apartheid, there were secret discussions that paved the way for dialogue between the African National Congress and the South African government. Aziz Pahad played a key role in these discussions and in this book he provides the first account of them from the ANC's perspective. Pahad recounts his early years in South Africa which informed his political ideology as well as his time in exile in London. He gives insights into the leadership of 00inspirational figures such as Yusuf Dadoo, Oliver Tambo and Thabo Mbeki and describes the central role played by the ANC in rescuing the country from the brink of disaster. There are also important lessons for governments still resorting to military aggression to resolve conflicts by showing that honesty, mutual understanding and compromise are essential to bringing an end to instability. A moving memoir about a significant historical period. The Insurgent Diplomat draws on the author's experiences as one of the ANC's most trusted politicians who contributed to a free and democratic South Africa. Finance Week

,2001-03 In Search of Land and Housing in the New South Africa Stephen Berrisford, Dave DeGroot, Michael Kihato, Ntombini Marrengane, Zimkhitha Mhlanga, Rogier van den Brink, 2008-02-14 This study outlines the difficulties poor communities face in accessing peri urban land in South Africa that could have implications and lessons for similar communities in other countries facing spatial segregation issues. In Search of Land and Housing in the New South Africa focused on one community composed largely of laid off farm workers that wanted to buy their own farm in a peri urban area west of Johannesburg. Their dream was to establish a mixed use settlement. They wanted to call the village Ethembalethu. Our Hope. About 250 families started their own association and savings scheme to make their dream a reality. By 1997 they had saved enough money to make their first purchase offer. A decade later the community's dream is still not a reality. The families have faced numerous obstacles: two cancelled sale agreements, wrongful arrest, being sued in court, an out of court settlement for which community members were paid to not move into the white neighborhood and large sums of their own money spent on consultants and environmental impact studies. In an agreement with the Mogale City Municipality where the land is located, the community now has at least a confirmed right to occupy the land. But it does not yet legally own the land and is still trying to get permission to build on and work the land. The case of Ethembalethu is not unique. Millions of black South Africans live in peri urban areas. Yet government programs, development planning and environmental regulations and the current land and housing markets do not support realization of their aspirations to become homeowners on sites of their choice. ICIE 2015 3rd International Conference on Innovation and Entrepreneurship Deresh
