

Step 3: Use the assessment sheet to focus on what children represent in their drawings and plan further instruction.

Few elements represented in drawing: If the child does not represent many ideas from the text, try reading aloud the passage to see if visualizing improves. If not, work on reading with retelling figures to help the reader match words from the text with images. (See the work of Dr. Arthur Glenberg for more research on this.)

Drawing contains literal components only: This child is having trouble with making inferences to build a mental model. Try working with mystery passages, in which the reader has to infer what the item or setting is from some clues. Work with the reader to think about what is in the text, and what he or she can imagine by combining text clues and background knowledge.

Drawing contains misinterpretations: These readers are tricky to deal with. In some cases, it's worth a conversation with students to figure out where the misinterpretations came from. Often, a misinterpretation might arise from a reading miscue or a misunderstanding of a multiple meaning word.

Step 4: Use Passage 2 to check for progress

How are students progressing? Use the second passage to see how students are doing.

Passage to Oneness Tom Stille, 2010-07-29 Tom Sloan thought he had life by the tail Successful in business financially comfortable the right friends the right kind of girl friends the right car the right condo and all the other trappings of a successful life in a big city Even though he occasionally had a nagging feeling that there should be more to life he was comfortable with the life he led That comfort was ruffled by a strange woman that challenged him irritated him and pushed the button of that nagging feeling he had when he questioned whether there was a more fulfilling life out there His brief interaction with her resulted in taking an unplanned trip that drastically altered his belief systems about life people and his part of it This book is an account of his journey which results in looking at some basic human traits in a completely different light The journey is not an individual journey of one man It is a synopsis of the journey through life most of us are presently taking And more important it raises questions and provides answers concerning where that journey can take us when we begin to shed ourselves of old beliefs and take a chance on embracing new ones
