that pleasure is a fundamental part of why we use technology and a framework for understanding the relationship between pleasure and technology The dominant feature of modern technology is not how productive it makes us or how it has revolutionized the workplace but how enjoyable it is We take pleasure in our devices from smartphones to personal computers to televisions Whole classes of leisure activities rely on technology How has technology become such an integral part of enjoyment In this book Barry Brown and Oskar Juhlin examine the relationship between pleasure and technology investigating what pleasure and leisure are how they have come to depend on the many forms of technology and how we might design technology to support enjoyment They do this by studying the experience of enjoyment documenting such activities as computer gameplay deer hunting tourism and television watching They describe technologies that support these activities including prototype systems that they themselves developed Brown and Juhlin argue that pleasure is fundamentally social in nature We learn how to enjoy ourselves from others mastering it as a set of skills Drawing on their own ethnographic studies and on research from economics psychology and philosophy Brown and Juhlin argue that enjoyment is a key concept in understanding the social world They propose a framework for the study of enjoyment the empirical program of enjoyment
