

Fallen Angels

Close Reading Excerpt from Chapter 5

Lieutenant Carroll came and asked me about my profile. He said that he knew that I had mentioned it when I first got into the company. I told him how I had hurt my knee playing ball.

"It bother you too much to go on patrols?"

"Not so far," I said. "I just don't want to get messed up because of the knee."

He looked at me for a long time without saying anything. Then he looked away for a moment and back at me. "Perry, I don't want to take you into court if the knee's really bad," he said. "It's not just you, I mean. Everybody in the squad is on everybody else."

"I guess it's not really that bad," I said.

"Look, I don't want to avoid the issue," he said. "If you tell me you can't go on patrol, I'll see if I can get you transferred to another outfit. If you tell me that you can go on patrol, then we'll just wait until the profile comes down and take a look."

"I'll wait for it," I said.

"I don't like putting you on the spot," he said. "I really don't. But we're all in this mess together."

"Sure."

When he left, Pee wee asked me what the conversation was about and I told him.

"Don't go being no hero," Pee wee said.

"What would you have said?" I asked him.

"Probably the same thing you did, but I would have been pissed off at myself," he said.

"I'm a little pissed," I said.

I really wasn't pissed because I knew the real question wasn't about my knee. I thought the knee would be okay. The real question was what I was doing, what any of us were doing, in Nam.

What is the primary motivation for Lieutenant Carroll to have this conversation with Perry?

- A. Concern for Perry's long-term health.
- B. Concern for the legal consequences facing the military should Perry die.
- C. Concern for the squad's collective well-being.
- D. Desire to send Perry away to another squad.
