Mentoring in the Criminal Justice Professions Frank A. Colaprete, 2009 The tradition of moving from one job to another in the criminal justice profession with the belief that on departure a new person will be brought in to assume the duties of his or her predecessor is archaic and ineffective It is rare to replace someone and have the benefit of his or her counsel and experience in learning the nuances of the job and its responsibilities Mentoring provides a framework whether informal or formal to interact support transfer knowledge and guide the protégé to the desired goal This book provides a blueprint of mentoring theory and practice testing evaluation

Fundamentals for the New Principalship Marvin J. Henderson Ph.D., 2021-10-26 Our formal professional preparation provides us with training and general education for the job we will enter However learning time on the job may be one of the most valuable experiences that fosters proficiency There is also critical knowledge and awareness that contributes to a new principal's effectiveness Although not exhaustive some of the important things the new principal needs to know and do are discussed in this book

The Organizational and Human Dimensions of Successful Mentoring Programs and Relationships Frances K. Kochan, 2002-08-01 Mentoring has become an important aspect of professional development in a wide variety of fields such as education engineering and business There is an increased interest in the topic on a global scale Research indicates that those who receive mentoring rise faster in their organizations and have more success in their careers than those who do not have this experience This series will focus on various aspects of the mentoring process This book examines mentoring with a focus on enhancing opportunities for those traditionally ignored in the mentoring process It includes chapters about mentoring in a variety of settings with varied populations to capture the essence of the experience The editor gleans the chapters to present an analysis of the organizational factors which should be considered when designing a mentoring program and the human side of the mentoring process The book should be of interest to those who want to foster the success of others through organizational mentoring initiatives as well as to individuals who wish to participate in mentoring endeavors as a mentor or mentee

Organizational Knowledge Facilitation through Communities of Practice in Emerging Markets Buckley, Sheryl, 2016-03-31 Communities of Practice are accessible to both experts and new members of a particular community with diverse academic and cultural backgrounds as well as varying social expectations and experiences Despite the tremendous opportunities for collective learning and knowledge sharing that Communities of Practice offer not enough is known about these communities in emerging economies and their potential to facilitate cooperation between experts from around the world Organizational Knowledge Facilitation through Communities of Practice and Emerging Markets seeks to fill the knowledge gap surrounding Communities of Practice and their role within developing nations Focusing on critical topics related to different types of knowledge communities and the ways in which such communities generate innovation this research based publication is an ideal reference source for academics business professionals researchers entrepreneurs and those currently studying at the graduate level
