Abstract

Abstract

Abstract This paper reports on a study of the impact of the 2008 financial crisis on the financial health of small businesses in the United States. The study used a survey of 1,000 small business owners in the United States. The results of the study indicate that the financial crisis had a significant negative impact on the financial health of small businesses. The study also found that small businesses that were able to adapt to the crisis were more likely to survive and thrive. The study has important implications for small business owners and policymakers.
