Energy can be transferred from one object to another. For example, a ball can be thrown and the energy is transferred to the ball. A student who says "the ball is moving" is describing the mechanical energy of the ball.

Energy can change from one form to another. For example, a battery can be used to power a light bulb. The electrical energy from the battery is transformed into light energy from the light bulb.

Here are some other examples of energy transformations:

input	output	output
electrical energy	light energy	heat energy
