

Introduction

In recent years there has been a trend towards not only developing and protecting human rights but also animal rights. While many people believe that we should give animals legal rights for humane reasons, most often, in a reasonable terms of food, as well as other related questions.

Body paragraph #1

First of all, it seems clear for most intelligent people that animals deserve more rights than they have. Unfortunately, however, that is because they are currently not dealt with with thought and feelings as if they are not really the same as we are. For example, it has been argued that some animals – birds and dolphins – think, feel and just like humans do. They would display the signs of their pain and wish that we would interact with humans differently. Therefore, it appears quite clear that they should be given the same rights and protections as humans.

Body paragraph #2

There are arguments against legal rights for animals and not that they don't have the ability of human feeling, but instead that human law is too strict and that the level of behavior is already normal within the natural world. It looks human should not be given legal rights, but instead, we should be humane and not have a relationship with the same as that of a wild and a sheep. It should be clear for us that animals are not very beautiful because that is the natural way of the world.

Conclusion

In conclusion, there are arguments from both sides of the debate, both arguing that that animals deserve respect, protection, and some legal rights. Perhaps they should not be given the same treatment as humans but they should certainly be treated better than they currently are and laws should be drafted for when their protection from abuse is lacking.
