

Lesson Skill: Narrative writing

Strand: Writing

SOL: 3.9

4.7

5.7

Materials

- Read-aloud text
- Personal narrative organizer (available on the Internet)
- Excerpts from text on index cards (for each student)
- Sample narrative
- Short list of personal narrative ideas
- Chart paper and markers
- Enlarged personal narrative graphic organizer

Lesson

1. Display the following characteristics of a personal narrative: about yourself, written in story format, and often chronological in order. Read a sample narrative to the class. Ask students to name a few of the interesting parts, and write them on a chart or board.
2. Ask students to imagine they are going to share an experience of their own with someone who did not participate in that experience. Have volunteers share their stories.
3. Ask the following questions:
 - Who is the story about?
 - How did you know what to tell first? Next? After that? Last?
 - What words indicate who was telling the story?
 - What kinds of words make your story more interesting? (Action verbs? Interesting nouns? Not too many adjectives?)
4. Explain to students that when they share a story about something that has happened to them, they are telling a personal narrative. Hand out the excerpts on index cards from the selected read-aloud or sample narrative. Have students read their excerpt and organize the text by posting the cards on the board, designated area, or electronic display. Point out that a story has a beginning (introduction), middle (body), and an end (conclusion). After students arrange their text, read them aloud. Ask students to identify the events and details in the story. Have students label the introduction, body, and conclusion.
5. Provide students with a copy of the sample narrative. Reread the selection in the correct order (introduction, body, and conclusion). Have students use information from the interactive activity to complete a personal narrative graphic organizer.
6. As a group, select a class experience to write about. Have students work in small groups to gather information about the chosen topic. Ask volunteers to share and record the information on chart paper.

Rita Smilkstein,2003 This author not only summarizes the theories and research regarding how the brain functions in the process of learning natural learning she also shows how she has continued to apply it in her own teaching and learning Robert Pinney Director Extension Teacher Education Programs Western Washington University This is an important and useful book readable practical and inspiring advice for the practicing teacher This is a great translation of theory into practice and Rita s stories of her own work are especially compelling Jean MacGregor National Learning Communities Project The Evergreen State College Olympia Washington This book is intended to make it possible for all students to realize their potential as natural learners It shows teachers how to make this possible not with attention getting activities that are more or less peripheral to the curriculum but with the curriculum itself Written for all teachers from K 12 through higher education as well as future educators this volume also provides information for parents students in general and everyone who wants to know how the brain learns Chapters Two and Three discuss two areas of research related to learning classroom field research and neuroscience research These two areas are brought together in Chapter Six leading to principles for developing brain compatible natural learning curricula for any subject at any level The author provides examples of classroom proven applications of the theory and Chapters Eight and Nine using guidelines and models show how this research based theory can be applied to the development of curricula for any classroom Examples of how to develop lesson plans and curricula for a unit course or program will be useful for teachers in all subjects The SAGE Handbook of Performance Studies D.

Although speech departments have owned delivery for the last 100 years those who teach writing especially English departments can gain a great deal by reinstating delivery into their conceptions of and theories about writing Thus in the author s vision of dramatizing writing in the composition classroom delivery can have an impact on all the composing steps from invention to final draft The goals of this text are to redefine delivery for writing to reunite it with other parts of the classical rhetorical canon and to practically apply it in contemporary writing instruction This text is divided into three main sections The first provides a survey of the history of delivery in rhetorical theory A continuum is set up from a totally physical conception of delivery to a noetic one which incorporates more intellectual processes The argument is that the tension heightened by discord over its definition eventually led to the splitting of delivery from the rhetorical canon A separate discussion of the women s challenge to delivery is also included The next section contains a survey of facets of delivery that exist in current theory combined with the author s own theory of delivery It provides insight into the state of delivery in contemporary writing instruction The author argues that since the split of delivery from the rhetorical canon has caused a modern bias against delivery in writing theory many strategies that could aid in the teaching of writing have either been overlooked or undertheorized Therefore she borrows from current theoretical areas within and outside of writing in order to construct her own theory of delivery The last section provides practical applications of delivery in writing instruction Again borrowing from many sources inside and outside of composition she describes the techniques teachers may use to incorporate delivery in a writing classroom Through the use of delivery more strategies may be developed to aid in the teaching of writing Special features include the incorporation of some practices that had been in use in the composition classroom for many years but did not have any consciously theoretical grounding the discussion of women rhetoricians theories on delivery the combination of many contemporary theoretical areas including theatrical feminist rhetorical and pedagogical to form the author s redefined theory of delivery and the presentation of practical applications of this new theory
