Life Sciences and Radiation Jürgen Kiefer, 2011-06-27 Scope and ideas of the workshop The workshop which took place at the University of Giessen from Oct 3 to Oct 7 2002 and whose proceedings are collected in this volume started from the idea to convene a number of scientists with the aim to outline their visions for the future of radiation research on the basis of their expertise As radiation research is a very wide field restrictions were unavoidable It was decided to concentrate this time mainly on molecular and cellular biology because it was felt that here action is particularly needed This did not exclude contributions from neighbouring fields as may be seen from the table of contents It was clearly not planned to have a comprehensive account of the present scientific achievements but the results presented should only serve as a starting point for the discussion of future lines of research with the emphasis on the outreach to other parts of life sciences If you are interested in the future ask the young we attempted therefore to invite mainly younger colleagues with a few exceptions who had however already left their marks in the field They were asked to describe what they felt is important in radiation research and may have significant influences on other branches of life sciences They were given the task to demonstrate what is lost for science if we do no longer exist

Meeting the Challenges to Measurement in an Era of Accountability Henry Braun, 2016-01-29 Under pressure and support from the federal government states have increasingly turned to indicators based on student test scores to evaluate teachers and schools as well as students themselves The focus thus far has been on test scores in those subject areas where there is a sequence of consecutive tests such as in mathematics or English language arts with a focus on grades 4-8 Teachers in these subject areas however constitute less than thirty percent of the teacher workforce in a district Comparatively little has been written about the measurement of achievement in the other grades and subjects This volume seeks to remedy this imbalance by focusing on the assessment of student achievement in a broad range of grade levels and subject areas with particular attention to their use in the evaluation of teachers and schools in all It addresses traditional end of course tests as well as alternative measures such as portfolios exhibitions and student learning objectives In each case issues related to design and development psychometric considerations and validity challenges are covered from both a generic and a content specific perspective The NCME Applications of Educational Measurement and Assessment series includes edited volumes designed to inform research based applications of educational measurement and assessment Edited by leading experts these books are comprehensive and practical resources on the latest developments in the field The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No
