Resources in Education ,1999-04

Why Doesn't Capital Flow from Rich to Poor Countries? P. draig Belton,2017 Robert Lucas is known among economists as one of the most influential macroeconomists of recent times a reputation founded in no small part on the critical thinking skills displayed in his seminal 1990 paper Why Doesn't Capital Flow from Rich to Poor Countries Lucas's paper tackles a puzzle in economic theory that has since come to be known as the Lucas paradox and it deploys the author's brilliant problem solving skills to explain why such an apparent paradox in fact makes sense Classical economic theory makes a simple prediction of how capital flows between countries it should it states flow from rich to poor countries because of the law of diminishing returns on capital Since poor countries have so little capital invested in them the returns on new investment should be proportionally far better than investment in rich countries This should mean that investors seeking new opportunities will invest in poorer countries making capital consistently flow from rich nations to poorer ones But problematically this is not in fact the case Having defined the problem Lucas did what any good problem solver would he looked critically at the criteria involved and offered a series of possible solutions Indeed in just six pages he puts forward four hypotheses to explain the paradox's existence The popularity of his paper and the influence it has had are also greatly magnified by careful reasoning embodied in Lucas's marshalling of evidence and his explanations of the judgements he has made Provided by publisher

Agricultural Innovation Systems The World Bank,2012-02-21 Managing the ability of agriculture to meet rising global demand and to respond to the changes and opportunities will require good policy sustained investments and innovation not business as usual Investments in public Research and Development extension education and their links with one another have elicited high returns and pro poor growth but these investments alone will not elicit innovation at the pace or on the scale required by the intensifying and proliferating challenges confronting agriculture Experience indicates that aside from a strong capacity in Research and Development the ability to innovate is often related to collective action coordination the exchange of knowledge among diverse actors the incentives and resources available to form partnerships and develop businesses and conditions that make it possible for farmers or entrepreneurs to use the innovations While consensus is developing about what is meant by innovation and innovation system no detailed blueprint exists for making agricultural innovation happen at a given time in a given place for a given result The AIS approach that looks at these multiple conditions and relationships that promote innovation in agriculture has however moved from a concept to a sub discipline with principles of analysis and action AIS investments must be specific to the context responding to the stage of development in a particular country and agricultural sector especially the AIS This sourcebook contributes to identifying designing and implementing the investments approaches and complementary interventions that appear most likely to strengthen AIS and to promote agricultural innovation and equitable growth It emphasizes the lessons learned benefits and impacts implementation issues and prospects for replicating or expanding successful practices The information in this sourcebook derives from approaches that have been tested at different scales in different contexts It reflects the experiences and evolving understanding of numerous individuals and organizations concerned with agricultural innovation including the World Bank This information is targeted to the key operational staff in international and regional development agencies and national governments who design and implement lending projects and to the practitioners who design thematic programs and technical assistance packages The sourcebook can also be an important resource for the research community and nongovernmental organizations NGOs
