diversity and diversity of disciplines and thinking while it is in its formative stage rather than trying to redress imbalances once they are entrenched in the industry

Image Mark C. Taylor, Thomas A. Carlson, Mary-Jane Rubenstein, 2021-09-20

The three essays in Image written by leading philosophers of religion explore the modern power of the visual at the intersection of the human and the technological. Modern life is steeped in images; image making and attempts to control the world through vision. Mastery of images has been advanced by technologies that expand and reshape vision and enable us to create, store, transmit and display images. The three essays in Image written by leading philosophers of religion Mark C. Taylor, Mary Jane Rubenstein and Thomas A. Carlson explore the power of the visual at the intersection of the human and the technological. Building on Heidegger's notion that modern humanity aims to master the world by picturing or representing the real, they investigate the contemporary culture of the image in its philosophical, religious, economic, political, imperial and military dimensions, challenging the abstraction, anonymity and dangerous disconnection of contemporary images. Taylor traces a history of capitalism focusing on its lack of humility, particularly in the face of mortality, and he considers art as a possible way to reconnect us to the earth. Through a genealogy of iconic views from space, Rubenstein exposes the delusions of conquest associated with extraterrestrial travel. Starting with the pressing issues of surveillance, capitalism and facial recognition technology, Carlson extends Heidegger's analysis through a meditation on the telematic elimination of the individual brought about by totalizing technologies. Together, these essays call for a consideration of how we can act responsibly toward the past in a way that preserves the earth for future generations. Attending to the fragility of material things and to our own mortality, they propose new practices of imagination grounded in love and humility.

The Oxford History of English Lexicography: Specialized dictionaries Anthony Paul Cowie, 2009

These substantial volumes present the fullest account yet published of the lexicography of English from its origins in medieval glosses through its rapid development in the eighteenth century to a fully established high tech industry that is as reliant as ever on learning and scholarship. The history covers dictionaries of English and its national varieties including American English with numerous references to developments in Europe and elsewhere which have influenced the course of English lexicography from publisher description.

Space Feminisms Marie-Pier Boucher, Claire Webb, Annick Bureaud, Nahum, 2024-01-25

Employing a global approach to feminist theory, this book examines how scientific, popular, scholarly and artistic imaginations of space have since the 1950s reflected and embedded earthly hopes, anxieties and futures. Rather than simply a platform for imagining the future, it cultivates radical and alternative modes of inquiry around space through seeing space as a material reality that reflexively encodes humans' self-perceptions of their planet and beyond. Bringing together essayistic reflections, artworks and interviews with space scientists, engineers and astronauts past and present in one volume, Space Feminisms inspects the transformation of terrestrially held notions of gender, race, class and ableism as they migrate to the extraterrestrial whilst drawing new connections between feminist thought and extraterrestrial power structures. Space

Feminisms makes a radical enquiry into how earthly power structures are already expanding into our skies facilitating a collaborative and interdisciplinary platform for scholars artists and designers to imagine radical constructions of human futures beyond Earth At the intersection of scientific cultural social and artistic speculations the book gathers leading scholars scientists artists and designers to develop innovative tactics and disruptive participations to create generative alternative and radical futures of and in space
