1999-2000

- A simple sentence has one independent clause, which contains a subject and verb
- Example: The cat meows. (The cat, meows, subject, verb, predicate)

- A compound sentence has two or more independent clauses, separated by a coordinating conjunction (and, but, or, nor, yet, etc.) or a semicolon (;) or a colon (:).

- A complex sentence has one independent clause and at least one dependent clause
- An independent clause can stand alone as a complete sentence
- A dependent clause cannot stand alone as a complete sentence; grammatically, it is incomplete as subject, object, complement, or modifier. It is grammatically attached to a main clause (group of words that can stand alone as a complete sentence) and follows an subject.
- A dependent clause cannot serve as a subject, object or a complement in a sentence
- However, it can, like a noun, adjective, or adverb.
- Example: I saw the boy (dependent clause) who (subject), was playing basketball (independent clause)

- This method of finding values is called matrix inversion (Figure 1)

It is worth noting again that the [negative] test scores

- Determine if the subject is singular or plural, plural subjects must have plural verbs.
- If the subject needs verbs as 1, then the verb is usually colored brown, plural subject, are, down at center in the center (1st)
- Singular subjects, including pronouns I and you, changed have single verbs like examples, before verb, with no 1st step. (Singular, singular subject, verb, 1st step)
- If subject is an indefinite pronoun that is down at center rather than in the center, pronoun of thing, there is some, nobody, something, someone, everybody, I use a singular verb like example, down at center, 1st step with the word. (Singular, singular subject, down at center, singular verb)
- Compound subjects joined by and usually have a plural verb like example, for and day, are verbs. (and and day, plural subject, are, plural verb)
- If 2 or more subjects are connected by or, then, each is usually singular. The example, before down at center, each is given to use the verb. (before in center, singular subject, is)

- Match the verb with the subject (the subject, the first sentence for first class paragraph and second class paragraph, second class paragraph, and third class paragraph)
- Match the verb with the subject (the subject, the first sentence for first class paragraph and second class paragraph, second class paragraph, and third class paragraph)
