

Case Management: The Mental Status Examination

Part 1: Introduction

The mental status examination (MSE) is based on your observations of the client. It is not related to the facts of the client's situation, but to the way the person acts, how the person talks, and how the person looks while in your presence. A mental status examination can be an abbreviated assessment done because someone appears to be in obvious need of hospitalization, or it can be an elongated process that takes place over several interviews. The MSE always has the same content, and you write your observations in roughly the same order each time.

Although a formal MSE would be done by a physician or psychologist, you can do an informal MSE in which you systematically look at the person's thinking process, feeling state, and behavior. You will want to understand the way the person functions emotionally and cognitively.

Much of the examination is done by observing how people present themselves at the interview and the manner in which they spontaneously give information about themselves and their situations. The examination is not done separately but is an integral part of the assessment interview. Questions that relate to mental status are framed as part of the overall assessment and not as a separate pursuit. There will be times when you or a clinician might ask for psychological testing to confirm your evaluation of the person, but during your own MSE of the person, this is not done.

Some of the terms you learn in this chapter are not necessarily words you will use in describing your clients and their appearance or behavior. This chapter is meant to familiarize you with the way some professional practitioners describe their clients and patients. If you know these terms, you will be able to follow the notes and discussions better.

Part 2: Observing the Client

What to Observe

Your mental status examination of the individual involves observations of the following:

- General appearance
- Behavior
- Thought process and content
- Affect
- Impulse control
- Insight
- Cognitive functioning
- Intelligence
- Reality testing
- Suicidal or homicidal ideation
- Judgment

A good case manager is a good observer. You pick up many details about the person, all of which are relevant to understanding the client's mental status. In a sense, you watch for the most obvious and the most subtle visual and verbal clues as to who your client is. Use what you see and hear to give you direction in regard to what questions to ask.
