

Our Credit Report Overview

A credit report and credit history are valuable tools that lenders use when determining if they will extend you credit or your credit-worthiness. Lenders typically look for scores that are higher versus lower. It's important to maintain a close eye on your credit report to ensure all reported information is accurate. In the event that there is a negative or erroneous item on your credit report then there are several ways you can contact the reporting credit bureau to have the item investigated or removed.

Pay close attention to items that are negative as they can negatively impact your credit score when attempting to obtain credit. If you have a negative item on your credit report, you may want to consider contacting the reporting credit bureau to have the item investigated or removed.
