Contributors Laurence Baker Ernst Berndt David Cutler Alan M Garber Thomas Macurdy Mark McClellan Louise Sheiner Richard Zeckhauser

Forthcoming Books Rose Arny, 1996-10 Medical and Health Care Books and Serials in Print, 1997 Understanding Healthcare Financial Management Louis C. Gapsenski, 2001 Health Economics and Financing

Thomas E. Getzen, 2010-01-07 Health and medical professionals rely on Getzen for its engaging introduction to the economic analysis of medical markets It is updated with the latest information in the field including a detailed look at health care reform and the emergence of Barack Obama's plan The developing health care system in China is covered to provide a more global perspective Investment cases along with a look at the ROI of specialty medical education are also presented And new C B and CEA case studies help health and medical professionals see how to effectively apply the principles and concepts

Working Paper Series, 1997 Cumulated Index Medicus, 1981 Is Price Inflation Different for the Elderly? Ernst R. Berndt, 1997 Using annual IMS data from 1990 to 1996 we examine empirically whether elderly nonelderly price inflation differentials exist for one medical item namely prescription pharmaceuticals We assess prices for Rx for Rx drugs destined for ultimate use by the elderly vs the nonelderly at three points in the distribution chain initial sales from manufacturers intermediate purchases by retail pharmacies and final sales from retail pharmacies to patients payors We find that at the initial point in the distribution chain there are no differences in price inflation for the aggregate of drugs destined for use by the elderly vs the nonelderly At the intermediate sell in to pharmacy distribution point we examine antibiotics ABs antidepressants ADs and calcium channel blockers CCBs For ABs since 1992 elderly price inflation is somewhat greater than for the young reflecting in part the elderly's more intensive use of newer branded products having fewer side effects adverse drug interactions and more convenient dosing attributes of particular importance to the elderly For ADs elderly price inflation is considerably less than for the young due in large part to the elderly's greater use of older generic products. For CCBs, elderly/nonelderly differentials are negligible. None of these differentials adjusts for variations in quality. At the final retail sell-out point, we only examine ADs. We find that since retailers obtain larger gross margins on generic than on branded products and because the elderly are disproportionately large users of generic ADs, the elderly/nonelderly price inflation differential benefiting the elderly at the intermediate point is reduced considerably at final sale. Books in Print Supplement, 2002
