Publication Catalog of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services United States. Department of Health and Human Services, Genes, Trade, and Regulation Thomas Bernauer, 2016-06-28 Agricultural or green biotechnology is a source of growing tensions in the global trading system particularly between the United States and the European Union Genetically modified food faces an uncertain future The technology behind it might revolutionize food production around the world Or it might follow the example of nuclear energy which declined from a symbol of socioeconomic progress to become one of the most unpopular and uneconomical innovations in history This book provides novel and thought provoking insights into the fundamental policy issues involved in agricultural biotechnology Thomas Bernauer explains global regulatory polarization and trade conflict in this area He then evaluates cooperative and unilateral policy tools for coping with trade tensions Arguing that the tools used thus far have been and will continue to be ineffective he concludes that the risk of a full blown trade conflict is high and may lead to reduced investment and the decline of the technology Bernauer concludes with suggestions for policy reforms to halt this trajectory recommendations that strike a sensible balance between public safety concerns and private economic freedom so that food biotechnology is given a fair chance to prove its environmental health humanitarian and economic benefits This book will equip companies farmers regulators NGOs academics students and the interested public including both advocates and critics of green biotechnology with a deeper understanding of the political economic and societal factors shaping the future of one of the most revolutionary technologies of our times Cooking with a Food Processor General Electric Co.
