

Harriet Tubman

Overview

Harriet Tubman was a former slave, abolitionist, and social activist best known for making at least 13 trips to rescue approximately 30 enslaved people by using a network of antislavery activists and safe houses known as the Underground Railroad. She also served as a scout and spy for the Union Army during the American Civil War and, later in her life, became an activist in the women's suffrage movement.

Early Life and Family

Harriet Tubman was born to enslaved parents as Araminta Ross. The exact year and location of her birth is unclear, but she is believed to have been born in March 1822 in Maryland. Her maternal grandmother arrived in the U.S. on a slave ship from Africa. No other information is known about her ancestors.

Harriet Tubman's mother struggled to keep her family together. When a trader wanted to buy her youngest son, she hid him for a month and threatened to harm anyone who tried to take him. Harriet was likely influenced by her mother's resistance.

Harriet suffered a serious head injury as an adolescent when an overseer threw a two-pound weight at another slave who was attempting to flee. The weight instead struck Tubman, knocking her unconscious. After the incident, she suffered severe headaches.

Following the injury, she also began experiencing visions and vivid dreams, which she interpreted as signs from God. She rejected the teachings of white preachers who urged slaves to be obedient to their owners and found inspiration from stories of liberation in the Old Testament of the Bible.

Around 1844, Harriet married a free black man named John Tubman. Since Harriet was enslaved, any children they had would also be enslaved. Soon after she was married, Tubman started going by the name Harriet, which was also her mother's name, rather than her birth name of Araminta. It is possible she changed her name as part of a religious conversion or to honor another relative. It is also possible that her name change related to her plans to escape slavery.

Escape from Slavery

In 1849, Tubman's owner died, increasing the likelihood she would be sold and her family would be broken apart. On September 17, 1849, Tubman and her brothers Ben and Henry escaped. Because they had been hired out to another household, their absence may not have been immediately noticed. Soon after they left, Ben and Henry had second thoughts and decided to go back, forcing Harriet to return with them.

Soon after they returned, Harriet escaped again, this time without her brothers. The exact route that she took is unknown, but she made use of the network known as the Underground Railroad. The network was composed of free and enslaved black people, white abolitionists, and more. She traveled by night, trying to avoid slave catchers looking to collect rewards for capturing escapees.

After reaching the free state of Pennsylvania, Tubman settled in Philadelphia and worked odd jobs to save money. Soon after, Congress passed the Fugitive Slave Act of 1850, which punished anyone who helped slaves escape and forced law enforcement officials to assist in the capture of escaped slaves, even in states where slavery was outlawed. The law increased the risks for escaped slaves, many of whom now sought to escape further north to British Canada, which as part of the British Empire, had abolished slavery.
