Knowledge and Knowers Karl Maton, 2013-09-11 We live in knowledge societies and work in knowledge economies but accounts of social change treat knowledge as homogeneous and neutral While knowledge should be central to educational research it focuses on processes of knowing and condemns studies of knowledge as essentialist This book unfolds a sophisticated theoretical framework for analysing knowledge practices Legitimation Code Theory or LCT By extending and integrating the influential approaches of Pierre Bourdieu and Basil Bernstein LCT offers a practical means for overcoming knowledge blindness without succumbing to essentialism or relativism Through detailed studies of pressing issues in education the book sets out the multi dimensional conceptual toolkit of LCT and shows how it can be used in research Chapters introduce concepts by exploring topics across the disciplinary and institutional maps of education how to enable cumulative learning at school and university the unfounded popularity of student centred learning and constructivism the rise and demise of British cultural studies in higher education the positive role of canons proclaimed revolutions in social science the two cultures debate between science and humanities how to build cumulative knowledge in research the unpopularity of school Music how current debates in economics and physics are creating major schisms in those fields LCT is a rapidly growing approach to the study of education knowledge and practice and this landmark book is the first to systematically set out key aspects of this theory It offers an explanatory framework for empirical research applicable to a wide range of practices and social fields and will be essential reading for all serious students and scholars of education and sociology

Testing Times Willis Richard, 2014-02-07 This book focuses on the delivery of public examinations offered by the main examining boards in England since Victorian England The investigation reveals that the provision of examinations was as controversial in the nineteenth century as it is today particularly since the government is now determined to bring in reform The issues of grade inflation the place of coursework in marking and the introduction of technological change all feature in this book Educational policy is primarily examined as well as some reference to the global scene The study analyses archival material from a wide range of sources including those records stored at the National Archives and the London Metropolitan Archives An emphasis is placed upon the various institutions that contributed to the process including the Royal Society of Arts the London Chamber of Commerce the City of Guilds of London Institute and the University of London Attention is given to the findings of the Taunton Commission and the Bryce Commission and shorter reports such as the Northcote Trevelyn Report which served to radicalise entry and recruitment to the Civil Service The modern GCSE and the plans for I levels are considered and key observations are made about the efficacy of those examinations offered by Oxford and Cambridge universities and O levels A levels and NVQs The reader is given every opportunity to benefit enthusiastically in this account of examinations and those engaged in education whether teachers examiners students or administrators will be able to gain useful insights into the workings of the examination system

Talking to Learn Pauline Jones, Jennifer Hammond, 2018-10-09 This book examines the place of talk in learning and the role of such talk in literacy education It builds on a strong tradition of research into the role of talk in constructing curriculum knowledge the relationship between talking and thinking and the significance of extended in depth dialogic interaction in classroom talk However it differs from tradition with its emphasis on the need to make the role of language in learning more visible and more explicit This book places particular emphasis on the relationship between dialogic pedagogy and language based approaches to learning Contributions range from discussions on educational linguistics and dialogic pedagogy as complementary perspectives to needs of students for whom English is an additional language or dialect This volume was originally published as a special issue of Research Papers in Education

Education plc Stephen J. Ball, 2007-03-06 Is the privatisation of state education defensible Did the public sector ever provide a fair education for all learners In Education plc Stephen Ball provides a comprehensive analytic and empirical account of the privatisation of education He questions the kind of future we want for education and what role privatisation and the private sector may have in that future Using policy sociology to describe and critically analyse changes in policy policy technologies and policy regimes he looks at the ethical and democratic impacts of these changes and raises the following questions Is there a legitimacy for privatisation based on the convergence of interests between business and the third way state Is the extent and value of private participation in public education misunderstood How is the selling of private company services linked to the remodelling of schools Why have the technical and political issues of privatisation been considered but ethical issues almost totally neglected What is happening here beyond mere technical changes in the form of public service delivery Is education policy being spoken by new voices Drawing upon extensive documentary research and interviews with senior executives from the leading education services industry companies the author challenges preconceptions about privatisation He concludes that blanket defence of the public sector as it was over and against the inroads of privatisation is untenable and that there is no going back to a past in which the public sector as a whole worked well and worked fairly in the interests of all learners because there was no such past This book breaks new ground and builds on Stephen Ball's previous work on education policy
