Handbook of Gender Research in Psychology

Joan C. Chrisler,Donald R. McCreary,2010-03-12 Donald R McCreary and Joan C Chrisler The Development of Gender Studies in Psychology Studies of sex differences are as old as the eld of psychology and they have been conducted in every sub eld of the discipline There are probably many reasons for the popularity of these studies but three reasons seem to be most prominent First social psychological studies of person perception show that sex is especially salient in social groups It is the rst thing people notice about others and it is one of the things we remember best Fiske Haslam Stangor Lynch Duan Glass 1992 For example people may not remember who uttered a witty remark but they are likely to remember whether the quip came from a woman or a man Second many people hold rm beliefs that aspects of physiology suit men and women for particular social roles Men s greater upper body strength makes them better candidates for manual labor and their greater height gives the impression that they would make good leaders i e people we look up to Women's reproductive capacity and the caretaking tasks e.g. breastfeeding, baby minding that accompany it make them seem suitable for other roles that require gentleness and nurturance. Third, the logic that underlies hypothesis testing in the sciences is focused on difference. Researchers design their studies with the hope that they can reject the null hypothesis that experimental groups do not differ. OPS4 Progress Toward Impact, Mergent International News Reports, 2009

International Business John S. Hill, 2008-11-26 This is a wonderful text remarkable for its breadth and freshness of approach. Hill links the often arcane world of international business to society and history. He has a good eye for the telling detail and the illuminating quotation. I shall be recommending this to my friends who are teaching, saying read this and get your students to stay curious. John Stopford, Emeritus, London Business School. Reflecting a strong managerial orientation, a corporate emphasis, and a true global-local focus, International Business: Managing Globalization explains the whats and whys of global differences as it covers industries, competitors, regions, and markets from the perspectives of practicing managers. Author John S. Hill reviews the geographic and historic backgrounds of regions and markets in a way that no other text has done, with special focus on global supply chains, global branding, and world religions as they affect management at the local level. Key Features: Integrates business topics and environmental analysis into a strategic global-local framework. Places current events in focus by covering history and geography as they affect international business. Includes a unique chapter on global industry and competitor analysis, a common business tool but a topic not covered in other texts. Covers religion as a key determiner of behaviors worldwide to help readers understand why behaviors differ depending on the local context. Focuses on corporate analysis, planning, and internationalization, vital corporate practices rarely covered in other textbooks. Includes both shorter and longer, more complex cases, thus appealing to both introductory and advanced courses. Accompanied by High Quality Ancillaries. HEIs continue to drive economic development through their traditional roles of purchaser, employer, real estate developer, workforce developer, and community developer. But these roles now must be executed more strategically and collaboratively. Also, the twenty-first century economy offers universities unique opportunities to generate the intellectual and financial capital that drives emerging knowledge-based industries. Case studies are drawn from urban America, rural America, Europe, the Middle East, and emerging countries Some of the topics covered include the following the role of university presidents as change leaders the relationship between higher education institutions and the political leadership of cities states and nations successful models of partnerships between higher education and the private sector and future challenges and opportunities facing the modern university Journal of the House of Representatives of the United States United States. In Search of Better Governance in South Asia and Beyond Ishtiaq Jamil,Steinar Askvik,Tek Nath Dhakal,2013-06-26 The pursuit for better governance has assumed center stage in developmental discourse as well as reform initiatives of all organizations working for the public welfare and includes such issues as service delivery and responding to citizens needs and demands In the era of globalization multilevel and new modes of governance are changing the traditional governance models of nation states accelerated by technological innovation rising citizen expectation policy intervention from international and multilateral donor communities and the hegemony of western ideology imposed on many developing nations However a universally accepted and agreed upon definition of governance still remains elusive There is no consensus or agreement as to what would be the nature and form of governance and public administration The question that is raised Is there a universal governance mechanism that fits in all contexts or governance mechanisms should be based on home grown ideas One can see various programs and policies of reforms and reorganizations in public administration in the developing countries but these efforts have not been effective to address the challenging issues of economic development employment generation poverty reduction ensuring equality of access to public services maintaining fairness and equity security and safety of citizens social cohesion democratic institution building ensuring broader participation in the decision making process and improving the quality of life Therefore there is a widespread concern for better governance or sound governance to bridge the gap between theory and practice making this book of interest to academics as well as policy makers in global public administration International Sport Management Eric W.
