Disruptive Innovation in Chinese and Indian Businesses Peter Ping Li,2013-03-12 With the rapid development of China and India as new economic powers in global competition an obvious question is whether these emerging economies are great opportunities or threats Whilst answers are bound to differ depending on one s perspective it is increasingly clear that more local firms especially local entrepreneurs from these emerging economies will play a more critical role in global competition by becoming challengers to global incumbents Indeed the fact that the majority of their populations are at the bottom of the pyramid and thus cannot afford products designed for the developed markets has made these emerging economies fertile ground for developing and applying disruptive innovations A novel mix of key attributes distinctive from those of established technologies or business models disruptive innovations are typically inferior yet affordable and good enough products or services which originate in lower end market segments but later move up to compete with those provided by incumbent firms

This book sheds new light on disruptive innovations both from and for the bottom of the pyramid in China and India from the point of view of local entrepreneurs and international firms seeking to operate their businesses there. It covers both the theoretical and practical implications of disruptive innovation using conceptual frameworks alongside detailed case studies whilst also providing a comparison of conditions and strategic options in India and China. Further, unlike existing studies, this book focuses on the neglected perspective of local challengers as the primary players and in doing so reveals the extent to which the future landscape of global competition may be shaped by disruptive innovation as well as its capacity to make the world flatter and more sustainable. This unique book will be valuable to both scholars and practitioners interested in disruptive innovation and those working in the fields of Asian studies, international business, economics and globalization.

Electronic Delivery of Documents and Graphics Daniel M. Costigan, 1978      Submarine Cables and the Oceans L. Carter, 2009

There are many things and services in our everyday life that we take for granted and telecommunications is one of them. We surf the internet, send emails to friends and colleagues abroad, talk to family members in foreign countries over the phone, book airline seats and make banking transactions without actually realizing and appreciating the sophisticated technology that enables us to do so. This report covers the history and nature of cables, their special status in international law, their interaction with the environment and other ocean users and finally the challenges of the future. It is an evidence-based synopsis that aims to improve the quality and availability of information to enhance understanding and cooperation between all stakeholders. UNEP WCMC in collaboration with the International Cable Protection Committee and UNEP has prepared this new report to provide an objective factual description of the sub-marine cable industry and the interaction of submarine telecommunications which route 95% of all international communications traffic with the marine environment. This important report seeks to focus and guide deliberations and decision making on the wise conservation and protection of the oceans in concert with their sustainable management and use.

Challenges in the Field of Economic and Financial Crime in Europe and the US Katalin Ligeti, Vanessa Franssen, 2017-02-23

In the past few years criminal justice systems have faced important global challenges in the field of economic and financial crime. The 2008 financial crisis revealed how strongly financial markets and economies are interconnected and illustrated that misconduct in the economic and financial sectors is often of a systemic nature with wide spread consequences for a large number of victims. The prevention, control and punishment of such crimes is thus confronted with a strong globalisation. Moreover, continuous technological evolutions and socio-economic developments make the distinction between socially desirable and undesirable behaviour more problematic.

Besides economic and financial misconduct is notoriously difficult to detect and investigate In light of these challenges legislators and law enforcers have been searching for adequate responses to combat economic and financial crime by adapting existing policies norms and practices and by creating new enforcement mechanisms The purpose of this volume is to analyse those challenges in the field of economic and financial crime from different perspectives and to examine which particular solutions criminal justice systems across Europe give to those challenges The volume has four parts The first part focuses on a number of key questions with respect to substantive criminal law whereas the second part will address issues affecting the administration of justice and criminal procedure Part three then explores particular challenges concerning multi agency cooperation and multi disciplinary investigations Finally part four will concentrate on issues regarding shared or integrated enforcement models
