

Math 1000: Calculus

This course is designed to provide a rigorous introduction to the fundamental concepts and techniques of calculus. It covers the theory and application of limits, derivatives, and integrals, with a focus on understanding the underlying principles and their practical implications. The course is structured to build a strong foundation for further study in mathematics and its applications in science and engineering.

The course is divided into several modules, each focusing on a specific area of calculus. The modules are designed to be completed in sequence, with each module building upon the concepts introduced in the previous one. The course is suitable for students with a strong background in algebra and trigonometry.

- Limits and Continuity: Understanding the behavior of functions as they approach a point.
- Derivatives: Calculating the rate of change of a function at a given point.
- Integrals: Finding the area under a curve and solving problems involving accumulation.
- Applications: Using calculus to solve real-world problems in physics, engineering, and economics.
- Review: Consolidating knowledge and skills learned throughout the course.
