

PLATE TECTONIC MAPPING ACTIVITY PLUS USGS INTERNET ACTIVITY

Earth Science Essentials

1. Background Information

Plate tectonics is the study of the movement of the Earth's crustal plates. The Earth's crust is divided into several large plates that move relative to each other. The movement of these plates is driven by convection currents in the mantle.

2. Plate Boundaries

There are three types of plate boundaries: divergent, convergent, and transform. Divergent boundaries occur where plates move apart, convergent boundaries occur where plates move together, and transform boundaries occur where plates slide past each other.

3. Plate Tectonic Theory

The theory of plate tectonics states that the Earth's crust is made up of several large plates that move relative to each other. The movement of these plates is driven by convection currents in the mantle.

4. Plate Tectonic Mapping

Plate tectonic mapping is the process of identifying and mapping the boundaries between the Earth's crustal plates. This is done by using a variety of data sources, including seismic data, satellite data, and geological data.

5. Plate Tectonic Mapping Activity

This activity is designed to help students understand the process of plate tectonic mapping. It includes a map of the world showing the boundaries between the Earth's crustal plates. Students are asked to identify the type of boundary between each pair of adjacent plates and to describe the movement of the plates relative to each other.
