Desmond Morris, 1979-04-01 A catalogue of human actions postures gestures facial expressions clothing and adornments includes explanations of their underlying causes and meanings On the Uniqueness of Humankind Hans-Rainer Duncker, K. Prieß, 2005-12-08 Biological and philosophical anthropologies of the 20th century keep emphasising the Sonderstellung of humans among the realm of living beings However it is not clear how this particular role should be characterised how it should be reconciled with biological findings and which theoretical and practical conclusions should be drawn from it Partly in opposition to these anthropological views on humankind biological disciplines underline the extensive similarities and common characteristics between humans and other species Apparently these biological findings concur with the criticism of anthropocentrism which is expressed in Western philosophy of nature and by ethicists To discuss these issues the Europäische Akademie organized the conference The Uniqueness of Humankind über die Sonderstellung des Menschen The proceedings of the conference documented in this volume approached the theoretical and practical concept of the Sonderstellung against the background of present day knowledge in biosciences Furthermore by interdisciplinary efforts an attempt was made to clarify those conceptual problems that arise with the idea of the uniqueness of humankind The present volume partly takes up and further develops topics that have been raised by volume 15 On Human Nature that was published in this series in 2002 Handbook of Interpersonal Communication Mark L. Knapp, John A. Daly, 2002-10 The Third Edition of the Handbook of Interpersonal Communication includes eight new chapters and eleven revised from the second edition Following an introductory chapter the volume is organized into four parts covering perspectives on inquiry in interpersonal communication fundamental units of interpersonal communication processes and functions and interpersonal contexts Features include Each chapter reviews and updates research in its respective area Part II examines methodological issues in the field Includes articles by top scholars in the field of Interpersonal Communication Peoplewatching Desmond Morris, 2012-11-30 Peoplewatching is the culmination of a career of watching people their behaviour and habits their personalities and their quirks Desmond Morris shows us how people consciously and unconsciously signal their attitudes desires and innermost feelings with their bodies and actions often more powerfully than with their words Horsewatching Desmond Morris, 2023-04-01 How intelligent are horses Why do they toss their heads and what makes them paw the ground After spending more than twenty years studying the body language of the human species Desmond Morris turned his attention to the behavior of some of our closest animal companions First he looked at dogs then cats and in this book horses As Curator of Mammals at the London Zoo he was able to study closely the zebras and wild horse in his charge And as a racehorse owner he scrutinized the glamorous world of Thoroughbred racing Throughout his long involvement with horses Desmond Morris has never stopped asking questions In Horsewatching first published in 1988 he set out to answer them As a zoologist and a lifelong student of animal behavior he approaches the horse world in an unusual way dealing with topics often ignored in equine literature In addition to examining details of behavior Dr Morris considers such questions as why horseshoes bring good luck why we don't eat horses why jockeys are allowed to whip their mounts and why we call a bad dream a nightmare And for punters everywhere he applies his zoological mind to the all important question of why some horses run faster than others

New York Times bestselling author     Teaching Interpersonal Skills Philip Burnard, 2013-12-14     Understanding Social Signals: How Do We Recognize the Intentions of Others? Sebastian Loth, Jan P. De Ruiter, 2016-05-30

Powerful and economic sensors such as high definition cameras and corresponding recognition software have become readily available e.g. for face and motion recognition. However, designing user interfaces for robots, phones and computers that facilitate a seamless, intuitive and apparently effortless communication as between humans is still highly challenging. This has shifted the focus from developing ever faster and higher resolution sensors to interpreting available sensor data for understanding social signals and recognising users' intentions. Psychologists, Ethnologists, Linguists and Sociologists have investigated social behaviour in human-human interaction. But their findings are rarely applied in the human-robot interaction domain. Instead, robot designers tend to rely on either proof of concept or machine learning based methods. In proving the concept, developers effectively demonstrate that users are able to adapt to robots deployed in the public space. Typically, an initial period of collecting human-robot interaction data is used for identifying frequently occurring problems. These are then addressed by adjusting the interaction policies on the basis of the collected data. However, the updated policies are strongly biased by the initial design of the robot and might not reflect natural, spontaneous user behaviour. In the machine learning approach, learning algorithms are used for finding a mapping between the sensor data space and a hypothesised or estimated set of intentions. However, this brute force approach ignores the possibility that some signals or modalities are superfluous or even disruptive in intention recognition. Furthermore, this method is very sensitive to peculiarities of the training data. In sum, both methods cannot reliably support natural interaction as they crucially depend on an accurate model of human intention recognition. Therefore, approaches to social robotics from engineers and computer scientists urgently have to be informed by studies of intention recognition in natural human-human communication. Combining the investigation of natural human behaviour and the design of computer and robot interfaces can significantly improve the usability of modern technology. For example, robots will be easier to use by a broad public if they can interpret the social signals that users spontaneously produce for conveying their intentions anyway. By correctly identifying and even anticipating the user's intention, the user will perceive that the system truly understands her/his needs. Vice versa, if a robot produces socially appropriate signals, it will be easier for its users to understand the robot's intentions. Furthermore, studying natural behaviour as a basis for controlling robots and other devices results in greater robustness, responsiveness and approachability. Thus, we welcome submissions that:

- a) investigate how relevant social signals can be identified in human behaviour
- b) investigate the meaning of social signals in a specific context or task
- c) identify the minimal set of intentions for describing a context or task
- d) demonstrate how insights from the analysis of social behaviour can improve a robot's capabilities
- e) demonstrate how a robot can make itself more understandable to the user by producing more human-like social signals
