COURSE OVERVIEW

According to The College Board, AP® English Language and Composition exists to help students become “skilled readers of prose written in a variety of periods, disciplines, and rhetorical contexts,” and “skilled writers who compose for a variety of purposes” (“Language and Composition” 8).<sup>1</sup> To develop competency in these two “skill sets,” students will confront as challenging and complex an endeavor as they are likely to encounter in their academic careers.

To achieve level-mastery in literacy, students will analyze “a variety of works and examine rhetorical strategies and stylistic choices” of the best non-fiction and fiction writers from Malcolm Gladwell to Toni Morrison (9). The “writing” includes a variety of text types, including biography, commentary, criticism, fiction, history, journalism, oration, science, and visual texts. In achieving this task, matters of plot and summary—the mainstays of students’ previous reading experiences—will diminish while students focus on the rhetorical features of these texts.

Analysis of texts will provide “students with opportunities to write about a variety of subjects from a variety of disciplines,” “enable [them] to read complex texts” with attention to audience and purpose, and “write prose of sufficient richness and complexity to communicate effectively” (9).

Advanced Placement allows teachers ample freedom in organizing their syllabi (20). We will develop our course of study according to four considerations that will constitute for us the lens through which we will read texts closely, looking beyond the “what” and into the “how” and — more importantly — the “why”:

- Situation: examining the contexts from which written works spring.
- Purpose: examining the goals that authors pursue in authoring their works.
- Audience: inferring the needs and/or expectations of the intended readers.
- Method: analyzing the rhetorical strategies (i.e., the artful uses of language) by which authors increase the likelihood of their success in achieving their purposes.

Finally, we will approach our study of rhetoric by examining four themes with each theme building on the previous one quarter by quarter: The Individual’s Identity, A Part of the Community, Law and Order, and A Global Village.
