

Final Product Evaluation(Cheesecake)

For my final product I made six small individual cheesecakes. These cheesecakes were all identical and layered. The first layer was my biscuit base. The biscuit base was made of shortbread which I made myself independently in the two hours which was available. The aroma of my base was sweet and welcoming from the freshly baked shortbread which made it feel homely and inviting. The taste of my biscuit base was warm and rich. It had a crumbly texture that broke down in your mouth exploding with the variety of ingredients. The appearance had an even golden glow which showed that it was perfectly cooked. The second layer was my cheese filling with vanilla essence added to it. I did this because I want my product to please my target market and this came out the most popular in my overall scoring of each of the ingredients added to the original mixture. The aroma of the filling was creamy and sugary. This was because it contained these two ingredients that stood out the most from all the component in the mixture. The texture of my cheese filling light and moist as it wasn't too harsh in the taste. The taste of the filling was rich and frothy as I whisk the cream to give a light frothy texture. The appearance of the cheese filling was original and gentle to the eye as it wasn't powerful to look at as it was an original colour for a cheese filling.

The third layer was my first decoration which was my jelly. The aroma of my jelly was fresh and fruit and I used a standard component to save time and also I found that my target market preferred this to the making my own. So therefore this fitted my target market and specification. The taste of the jelly was wobbly and refreshing. The appearance was original and smooth and the texture was wobbly but set. My second decoration was my forest fruits sauce that I place on top using the rest of my remaining fruits. The aroma of the sauce was fruity and fresh. The taste was sweet and healthy. The texture was smooth with occasional lumps of the fruit remaining, and the appearance was thick as I gave a professional finish to my overall product. In my sorbet sauce it contains raspberry's, blueberry's, blackberries, cherries and morello cherries.

The aroma of my product was fresh and pure, this was from my forest fruits sorbet sauce that I had place on top for decoration. The texture and taste was unusual and inviting with every mouthful having an equal amount of each of the layers in. The appearance was professional and identical and also it was seen as unique as my product overall was adventurous as I experimented with different ingredients. My product fitted my specification as the portion sizes were equal and identical as I used 6 ramekins to make sure of this. I chose this specific shape for my ramekins as it made it easy to fit equal amounts of ingredients in each layer and I would have found it hard to add my shortbread base into a confusing mould that I may not be able to put into the corners so therefore other layers could interfere with the others making it look unprofessional and not identical. Most of my ingredients used were fair trade and free ranged so therefore my product will be cheaper and so will suit my questionnaire of it costing a certain amount to please my target market. The product is also safe as the ingredients it contains will be labelled to give awareness for any allergies, medical information or dietary needs.
