Narrative/ Descriptive/ Reflective The following must be considered: • If narrative, the story must have a strong story line and convincing. Written in the past tense. Introductory paragraph should capture the reader's attention. Good, interesting storyline. Vividly highlights sensory details as sight, sound, taste, smell and tactile sensations. • If descriptive, the essay attempts to convey how that subject looked, felt, tasted, sounded, smelled, and so on, and express the emotion or sensation so clearly and vividly that the reader can feel it, too. The writer should create a picture in words. Words and expressions are chosen carefully to achieve the desired effect. Images of sight, sound, hearing, taste and touch can be used to make the description vivid. Figures of speech are used in original ways. • If reflective, the writer contemplates an idea and gives his or her emotional reactions and feelings. Feelings and emotions play a major role. A substantial part of the essay may be descriptive. These descriptions should be vivid and aim to recreate recollections or feelings of the writer. The ideas, thoughts or feelings expressed should reveal sincerity and personal involvement. • NOTE: A candidate may write an essay which contains elements of more than one type of essay.	[50]
