Handbook of AI-based Metaheuristics Anand J. Kulkarni, Patrick Siarry, 2021-09-01 At the heart of the optimization domain are mathematical modeling of the problem and the solution methodologies The problems are becoming larger and with growing complexity Such problems are becoming cumbersome when handled by traditional optimization methods This has motivated researchers to resort to artificial intelligence AI based nature inspired solution methodologies or algorithms The Handbook of AI based Metaheuristics provides a wide ranging reference to the theoretical and mathematical formulations of metaheuristics including bio inspired swarm based socio cultural and physics based methods or algorithms their testing and validation along with detailed illustrative solutions and applications and newly devised metaheuristic algorithms This will be a valuable reference for researchers in industry and academia as well as for all Master s and PhD students working in the metaheuristics and applications domains

Gravitational Radiation, Luminous Black Holes and Gamma-Ray Burst Supernovae Maurice H. P. M. van Putten, 2005-12-15 Black holes and gravitational radiation are two of the most dramatic predictions of general relativity The quest for rotating black holes discovered by Roy P Kerr as exact solutions to the Einstein equations is one of the most exciting challenges facing physicists and astronomers Gravitational Radiation Luminous Black Holes and Gamma Ray Burst Supernovae takes the reader through the theory of gravitational radiation and rotating black holes and the phenomenology of GRB supernovae Topics covered include Kerr black holes and the frame dragging of spacetime luminous black holes compact tori around black holes and black hole spin interactions It concludes with a discussion of prospects for gravitational wave detections of a long duration burst in gravitational waves as a method of choice for identifying Kerr black holes in the Universe This book is ideal for a special topics graduate course on gravitational wave astronomy and as an introduction to those interested in this contemporary development in physics

Mathematical Reviews, 2005 Notes for a New Physics and Cosmology Giacinto Libertini, 2025-09-03 For the layman modern physics is like an immense and magnificent cathedral that is impressive in its complex and sophisticated architecture and amazing in size and richness of the workmanship Yet in this apparently almost complete building there is no answer to a series of fundamental and crucial questions while in any case these answers are indispensable and preliminary to any general theory It is essential to avoid confusion between appropriate and clarifying answers and false tautological answers or formulas that actually say nothing about the questions asked In this book the starting point is the interpretation given by Einstein s general relativity to explain the gravitational force not as an action at a distance but as an intrinsic effect of the spatial distortions caused by the masses This interpretation of Einstein is here extended to the explanation of any attractive or repulsive force as an effect for each force of the flattening of a specific dimension with positive or negative curvature The work offers without any forcing an explanation for most of the unsolved questions of physics the nature of a mass and of matter and antimatter the structure of an atom the origin of natural constants the quantization of phenomena etc It also offers a different interpretation of the structure of electrons and black holes In addition the existence of antimatter in protons is also predicted but not in neutrons a phenomenon that appears to be documented by recent works This book is not written by a physicist but it also highlights why an academic physicist would have to overcome serious or insurmountable difficulties to give innovative answers to the fundamental unsolved problems of physics using concepts that are different from those currently accepted The
