in forest ecosystems worldwide has been witnessed during the last decades The most important disturbance agents are wind drought fire insects and pathogens except for direct human activities The main causes of higher frequency disturbance incidence are i climate change affecting the balance of ecosystems accompanied by an increase in the frequency of extreme events ii biological invasions associated primarily with the intensive development of international travel and trade iii economically oriented silvicultural management affecting the species composition and structures of forests However disturbances are an essential factor in the dynamics of natural forests by understanding these we can comprehend the changes in processes which are currently taking place in forested landscapes A fundamental challenge for current efforts for sustainable forestry is to incorporate the increased frequency of disturbances in forest ecosystems into strategies of forest management

Optimisation of Dynamic Heterogeneous Rainfall Sensor Networks in the Context of Citizen Observatories Juan Carlos Chacon-Hurtado,2019-11-21 Precipitation drives the dynamics of flows and storages in water systems making its monitoring essential for water management Conventionally precipitation is monitored using in situ and remote sensors In situ sensors are arranged in networks which are usually sparse providing continuous observations for long periods at fixed points in space and due to the high costs of such networks they are often sub optimal To increase the efficiency of the monitoring networks we explore the use of sensors that can relocate as rainfall events develop dynamic sensors as well as increasing the number of sensors involving volunteers citizens This research focusses on the development of an approach for merging heterogeneous observations in non stationary precipitation fields exploring the interactions between different definitions of optimality for the design of sensor networks as well as development of algorithms for the optimal scheduling of dynamic sensors This study was carried out in three different case studies including Bacchiglione River Italy Don River U K and Brue Catchment U K The results of this study indicate that optimal use of dynamic sensors may be useful for monitoring precipitation to support water management and flow forecasting Autocar ,2002
