How does the cell membrane control movement of materials?

Why?

The membrane is critical to the maintenance of homeostasis in living organisms. The cell membrane separates the cell from the external environment and plays a critical role in regulating movement of material in and out of the cell. Additionally, eukaryotic cells are made complex by the presence of internal membranes that form organelles, so the cells may become specialized. These organelle membranes create compartments within the cell that can do specific functions.

Control of Membrane Function: short-term and long-term J.M. Ritchie, P. Magistretti, L. Bolis, 2012-12-02 A critical factor in cell to cell interactions is the presence in the cell membrane of highly specific ion channels controlled by specific receptors that are bound to and activated by a gamut of external hormones and neurotransmitters Through both this action on ion channels and action on other membrane components such as G proteins extracellular signals alter intracellular events usually through the mediation of second messengers and so provide the basis for the transduction mechanism connecting extracellular signals with intracellular effectors This volume deals with the various ways that such membrane function is controlled
