European Defence Decision-Making Antonio Calcara,2020-03-02 This book comparatively examines the preferences of four key arms producing states towards European joint armaments programmes The European defence market is characterised by a mixture of inter state competition and European cooperation and this work assesses why countries sometimes decide to cooperate with their partners while in other instances they refrain from doing so In order to shed light on this empirical puzzle the book focuses on state defence industry relations in the four major European arms producers France Germany Italy and the UK The main argument is that the public or private governance of industrial suppliers and market size are the two decisive variables that explain the simultaneous presence of cooperation and competition in European defence procurement Specifically it argues that in public governance ecosystems arms industries are able to capture the state s decision making processes to their own advantage In private governance ecosystems the state is relatively autonomous from defence industry s influence and able to pursue larger macro economic and military benefits Moreover the strategy pursued by governments and defence firms is decisively shaped by market size because of its importance in determining the relative costs and benefits of collaborative arrangements This book will be of much interest to students of EU policy defence studies European politics and International Relations Routledge Handbook of Strategic Culture Kerry M. Kartchner, Briana D. Bowen, Jeannie L. Johnson, 2023-10-11 This handbook offers a collection of cutting edge essays on all aspects of strategic culture by a mix of international scholars consultants military officers and policymakers The volume explicitly addresses the analytical conundrums faced by scholars who wish to employ or generate strategic cultural insights with substantive commentary on defining and scoping strategic culture analytic frameworks and approaches levels of analysis sources of strategic culture and modalities of change in strategic culture The chapters engage strategic culture at the civilizational regional supra national national non state actor and organizational levels The volume is divided into five thematic parts which will appeal to both students who are new to the subject and scholars who wish to incorporate strategic culture into their toolbox of analytical techniques Part I assesses the evolving theoretical strengths and weaknesses of the field Part II lays out elements of the theoretical and methodological foundations of the field including sources and components of strategic culture Part III presents a number of national strategic cultural profiles representing the state of contemporary strategic culture scholarship Part IV addresses the utility of strategic culture for practitioners and scholars Part V summarizes the key theoretical and practical insights offered by the volume s contributors This handbook will be of much interest to students of strategic studies defense studies security studies and international relations in general as well as to professional practitioners

Theorising the European Union as an International Security Provider Annemarie Peen Dodt, Richard Whitman, Stefan Wolff, 2018-02-02 The European Union has increasingly taken on a role as international security provider that extends beyond the geographical scope of its membership This is clear from the wide range of military and civilian crisis management missions that the Union has undertaken but also identifiable through its other policies such as the European Neighbourhood Policy and development assistance which have also to some extent become security focused Yet the role of the EU as an international security provider remains under theorized and weakly understood The proposed book analyses the Union s role as an international security provider in a comprehensive way developing theoretical as well as empirical grounding for the understanding of the making and implementation of EU security policy The contributions in this book cover actors involved in the policy making process the dynamics of this process itself its outcomes strategies and policies and their impact on the ground They examine the relevance of and apply existing theories of international relations international security and foreign policy analysis to the specific case of the EU investigate empirically how particular policies are formulated and implemented and study the impact and effectiveness of the Union as an international security provider in a variety of cases compared This book was previously published as a special issue of Global Society European Security in NATO's Shadow Stephanie C. Hofmann, 2013-01-03 NATO has been a successful forum for managing European security policy Yet European governments have repeatedly tried to build a new security institution in NATO s shadow In this innovative book Stephanie C Hofmann asks why governments attempted to create an additional institution despite no obvious functional necessity and why some attempts failed while others succeeded European Security in NATO s Shadow considers security cooperation through the lens of party ideologies to shed new light on these questions She observes that political parties are motivated to propose new institutions by their multidimensional ideologies Moreover the success of efforts to create such institutions depends on the degree of ideological congruence among parties in power In particular the relationship between the values of multilateralism sovereignty and Europe informed the impetus and success rate of the attempts made during negotiations for the Maastricht Amsterdam and Nice treaties to create a European security institution

War and Intervention in the Transnational Public Sphere Cathleen Kantner, 2015-10-05 The post Cold War era saw an unexpected increase in intra state violence against ethnic and religious groups brutal civil wars and asymmetric conflicts Those crises posed fundamental questions for the European Union and its member states to which Europe has so far proven unable to develop satisfactory answers This book contends that public debates over wars and humanitarian military interventions after the Cold War represent an evolving process of comprehension and collective interpretation of new realities Employing innovative computer linguistic methods it examines the dynamics of this debate across Europe and compares it to that of the United States In doing so it argues that transnational political communication has shaped European identity formation in significant ways and that in trying to come to terms with important crises and institutional events shared understandings of Europe have emerged Looking at evidence from a wide range of countries including Austria France Germany Ireland the Netherlands and the United Kingdom and spanning a continuous period of 16 years this book empirically analyses these shared understandings of the EU as a problem solving and ethical community This book will be of interest to students and scholars of international relations EU politics security studies comparative politics political communication and European integration The European Union and the Use of Military Force Tommi Koivula, 2016-05-26 Koivula examines the discursive space related to the use of military force by the European Union EU By examining the EU's relationship to its use of military force during the course of its history and by demonstrating that the contemporary discursive space of the EU military dimension is incoherent in nature and contains inherent contradictions he seeks to answer the related question of whether extreme forms of military enforcement for example killing is appropriate for the EU

The Oxford Handbook of the European Union Erik Jones, Anand Menon, 2012-08-30 This is an authoritative one volume and independent treatment of the history functioning and nature of the European integration Written by a selection of leading scholars It covers the major institutions policies and events in the history of integration whilst also providing a guide to the major theoretical approaches that have been used to study it over time By bringing together such a distinguished cast covering such a wide array of themes the Handbook is intended as a one stop shop for all those interested in the European Union and its predecessors Written in an accessible style the volume is intended to shape the discipline of EU studies and to establish itself as the essential point of reference for all those interested in European integration both in universities and more broadly It represents a timely guide to an institution that is much discussed but often only imperfectly understood The EU and Military Operations Katarina Engberg, 2013-10-30 This book is a comparative study which aims to answer the question under what circumstances does the EU undertake military operations Since 2003 the EU has carried out six military operations What accounts for this historic development The EU and Military Operations examines the dynamics behind the EU's collective use of force and situates the EU in the context of a global division of labour with regard to military crisis management It centres on the study of two main cases of EU military operations the non case when an operation was planned in the Lebanon war 2006 but did not occur and the positive case of EUFOR RD Congo that same year Drawing upon these findings the author creates an innovative analytical framework based upon the techniques of defence planning and applies this to the cases studies with the purpose of identifying the main driving and inhibiting factors behind the operations Key findings derived from this analysis include the growing importance of local actors in facilitating or impeding the EU's deployment of military force and the enhanced role of regional organisations as security providers The book will be of much interest to students of European security EU politics strategic studies humanitarian intervention security studies and IR in general

Diplomacy and Security Community-Building Niklas Bremberg, 2015-09-16 This book contributes to the ongoing debate in IR on the role of security communities and formulates a new mechanism based analytical framework It argues that the question we need to ask is how security communities work at a time when armed conflicts among states have become significantly less frequent compared to other non military threats and trans boundary risks e.g terrorism and the adverse effects of climate change Drawing upon recent advances in practice theory the book suggests that the emergence and spread of cooperative security practices ranging from multilateral diplomacy to crisis management are as important for understanding how security communities work as more traditional confidence building measures Using the EU Spain and Morocco as an in depth case study this volume reveals that through the institutionalization of multilateral venues the EU has provided cooperative frameworks that otherwise would not have been available and that the de territorialized notion of security threats has created a new rationale for practical cooperation between Spanish and Moroccan diplomats armed forces and civilian authorities Within the broader context this book provides a mechanism based framework for studying regional organizations as security community building institutions and by utilizing that framework it shows how practice theory can be applied in empirical research to generate novel and thought provoking results of relevance for the broader field of IR This book will be of much interest to students of multilateral diplomacy European Politics foreign policy security studies and IR in general

The European Union as Crisis Manager Arjen Boin, Magnus Ekengren, Mark Rhinard, 2013-08-08 The European Union is increasingly being asked to manage crises inside and outside the Union From terrorist attacks to financial crises and natural disasters to international conflicts many crises today generate pressures to collaborate across geographical and functional boundaries What capacities does the EU have to manage such crises Why and how have these capacities evolved How do they work and are they effective This book offers an holistic perspective on EU crisis management It defines the crisis concept broadly and examines EU capacities across policy sectors institutions and agencies The authors describe the full range of EU crisis management capacities that can be used for internal and external crises Using an institutionalization perspective they explain how these different capacities evolved and have become institutionalized This highly accessible volume illuminates a rarely examined and increasingly important area of European cooperation

Extending Experimentalist Governance? Jonathan Zeitlin, 2015-08-13 Extending Experimentalist Governance takes as its point of departure three observations about the current state of transnational regulation within and beyond the EU Across a wide and expanding range of policy fields the EU has developed over the past 15 years a new architecture of experimentalist governance based on framework rule making and revision through recursive review of implementation experience in diverse local contexts Through a variety of institutional mechanisms and channels the EU is actively seeking to extend its own internal rules norms standards and governance processes beyond the Union s borders to third countries and the wider world In a number of major issue areas experimentalist regimes with similar architectural features to those within the EU appear to be developing on a global or transnational scale The book s goal is to explore both empirically and theoretically the relationship between these three contemporaneous trends and to assess their consequences for the EU s evolving role in transnational regulation The book tackles these questions about the external dimension of EU experimentalist governance and its relationship to broader trends in transnational regulation through in depth analysis of recent developments across a series of key policy domains by a distinguished interdisciplinary group of European and North American scholars The domains addressed include neighbourhood policy food safety GMOs chemicals forestry competition finance data privacy disability rights crisis management justice and security
