The following winning essay was submitted in 2009 by a UK higher education student for an essay writing competition sponsored by the LearnHigher Centre of Excellence in Teaching and Learning (CETL) network. The set title was 'What is the point of referencing?', and there was a maximum word limit of 1,500 words.

There is a tutor commentary on the points made by the student to the left of the essay.

The introduction to an essay is very important. Here the student immediately addresses the question.

What is the point of referencing?

The reasons why accurate referencing is essential for academic work are not immediately apparent, particularly for students new to higher education. This essay will, therefore, examine why referencing is an essential part of academic writing and in the process address the question: 'what is the point of referencing?'

The student introduces the main reasons for referencing.

There are three main reasons for referencing. Firstly, referencing helps student writers to construct, structure, support and communicate arguments. Secondly, references link the writer's work to the existing body of knowledge. Thirdly, only through referencing can academic work gain credibility.

Summarises the structure of the essay.

This essay will discuss these three aspects of referencing in detail, examine their validity, identify how referencing affects a writer's writing style, and show how referencing helps students to present their own ideas and opinions in assignments.

Engages with the first of the reasons for referencing: construction of arguments. The student draws on the work of a published writer (Becker) in support of the four points made.

Becker (1986) believes the construction of arguments is the most important function of referencing systems. There are four dimensions to this. Firstly, drawing on existing literature, academic writers can construct their own arguments - and adopting a referencing system supports this process. Secondly, it helps to structure the existing information and arguments by linking published authors to their respective works. Third, referencing helps academic writers identify sources, gather evidence, as well as show the relationships between existing knowledge. Finally, referencing also provide a framework to Note the systematic way the ideas are presented: 'Firstly...; Secondly...; Thirdly...; Finally'.

IEO Evaluation Report International Monetary Fund. Independent Evaluation Office, 2020-02-03 This report updates the 2009 IEO evaluation of IMF Involvement in International Trade Policy Issues Since then the composition and structure of international trade have evolved but trade has not regained its former dynamism With increasing concern about potential winners and losers from trade there has been a loss of political support for globalization increasing trade tensions and protectionism and the institutional framework supporting multilateral trade has come under heavy strain The report concludes that overall the IMF deserves considerable credit for its active and timely response playing a prominent role in championing commitment to an open rules based multilateral trading system The Fund has largely implemented the recommendations of the 2009 evaluation and has strengthened and consolidated its trade policy analysis and advice appropriately focusing on the key macroeconomic effects and associated risks of trade policy developments at the national and international levels IMF advocacy on trade has been underpinned by a major expansion in the attention to trade policy issues in multilateral surveillance and to some extent in bilateral surveillance supported by high quality research and analysis building on the Fund's well established modeling capacity Looking forward the Fund will need to sustain its current high level of advocacy and analysis on trade policy issues and consider how to increase the overall impact of this work Key challenges include contributing to foster a recommitment to trade policy cooperation further attention to translating multilateral surveillance into bilateral policy advice consolidating relations with partner institutions and increased attention to rapidly developing trade policy issues Across all these dimensions care will be needed to ensure appropriate evenhandedness in trade policy surveillance across countries A holistic review of the IMF's trade strategy would help to guide trade policy work and the allocation of scarce resources among competing priorities

Program Evaluation John M Owen, 2020-08-04 Program Evaluation 3rd edition has the hallmarks of thoroughness insight and fluency of other editions but brings us up to date with a map of the evaluation territory new travelers will find invaluable Professor Murray Saunders UK and European Evaluation Societies John Owen's Program Evaluation helps practitioners clarify distinctions between what we evaluate the various motivations for conducting evaluation and the approaches attendant to each Timely evaluation examples liberally sprinkled throughout this book make it exceptionally useful and helpful to practitioners I highly recommend Program Evaluation Professor Marvin Alkin UCLA Graduate School of Education Information Studies Everyone involved with policy and program development and delivery is being asked to plan more carefully reflect more critically and justify their decisions The key to this is evaluation Program Evaluation offers a conceptual yet straightforward and practical overview of the evaluation process for both beginners and experienced practitioners It shows evaluators how to identify appropriate forms approaches and methods using an original framework John Owen examines the contributions of evaluation to program provision and offers proven techniques for involving stakeholders in the planning process and for disseminating the evaluation findings This third edition has been thoroughly revised to incorporate recent research on evaluation and new examples of good practice It includes sections of management of evaluation negotiating evaluation plans program logic and ex ante evaluation evidence based practice performance management and accountability With international examples from a range of health education welfare community and other settings Program Evaluation is an essential reference for anyone involved in evaluation in both the public and private sectors IEO Evaluation Report on the IMF's Approach to Capital Account Liberalization 2005 International Monetary Fund. Independent Evaluation Office,2005-08-09 Drawing on evidence from a sample of emerging market economies over the period 1990 2004 this evaluation report reviews the IMF s approach to capital account liberalization and related issues The evaluation seeks to contribute to transparency by documenting what in practice has been the IMF s approach to these issues and to identify areas where the IMF s instruments and operating methods might be improved in order to deal with these issues more effectively Annual Evaluation Report on Programs Administered by the U.S. Office of Education United States. Office of Evaluation and Dissemination, Evaluating Professional Development Thomas R. Guskey,2000 How do we determine the effects and effectiveness of activities designed to enhance the professional knowledge and skills of educators so that they might improve the learning of students Thomas R Guskey explores the processes and procedures involved in evaluating professional development from the very simple to the very complex at five increasing levels of sophistication Participants reactions to professional development How much participants learn Evaluating organizational support and change How participants use their new knowledge and skills Improvement in student learning complete with sample evaluation forms checklists and helpful hints and tips Annual Evaluation Report of China's Cultural Consumption Demand Ya'nan Wang,Puning Hao,Ting Liu,Juan Zhao,Yu Fang,2016-09-05 Gathering contributions by leading social development scholars this report offers a comprehensive description of the national development of cultural consumption in China By comparing the annual growth of cultural consumption GDP growth per capita income growth and savings growth the authors reveal the disparity between urban and rural areas in terms of cultural consumption as well as that between provinces Based on an analysis of the status quo of cultural consumption in China the book explores the road to a prosperous society and enhancing China s cultural development Beyond open access: visions for open evaluation of scientific papers by post-publication peer review Nikolaus Kriegeskorte,Diana Deca, A scientific publication system needs to provide two basic services access and evaluation The traditional publication system restricts the access to papers by requiring payment and it restricts the evaluation of papers by relying on just 2 4 pre publication peer reviews and by keeping the reviews secret As a result the current system suffers from a lack of quality and transparency of the peer review evaluation process and the only immediately available indication of a new paper s quality is the prestige of the journal it appeared in Open access is now widely accepted as desirable and is slowly beginning to become a reality However the second essential element evaluation has received less attention Open evaluation an ongoing post publication process of transparent peer review and rating of papers promises to address the problems of the current system However it is unclear how exactly such a system should be designed The evaluation system steers the attention of the scientific community and thus the very course of science For better or worse the most visible papers determine the direction of each field and guide funding and public policy decisions Evaluation therefore is at the heart of the entire endeavor of science As the number of scientific publications explodes evaluation and selection will only gain importance A grand challenge of our time therefore is to design the future system by which we evaluate papers and decide which ones deserve broad attention So far scientists have left the design of the evaluation process to journals and publishing companies However the steering mechanism of science should be designed by scientists The cognitive computational and brain sciences are best prepared to take on this task which will involve social and psychological considerations software design and modeling of the network of scientific papers and their interrelationships This Research Topic in Frontiers in Computational Neuroscience collects visions for a future system of open evaluation Because critical arguments about the current system abound these papers will focus on constructive ideas and comprehensive designs for open evaluation systems Design decisions include Should the reviews and ratings be entirely transparent or should some aspects be kept secret Should other information such as paper downloads be included in the evaluation How can scientific objectivity be strengthened and political motivations weakened in the future system Should the system include signed and authenticated reviews and ratings Should the evaluation be an ongoing process such that promising papers are more deeply evaluated How can we bring science and statistics to the evaluation process e g should rating averages come with error bars How should the evaluative information about each paper e g peer ratings be combined to prioritize the literature Should different individuals and organizations be able to define their own evaluation formulae e g weighting ratings according to different criteria How can we efficiently transition toward the future system Ideally the future system will derive its authority from a scientific literature on community based open evaluation We hope that these papers will provide a starting point
