Genomics in Aquaculture to Better Understand Species Biology and Accelerate Genetic Progress José Manuel Yáñez, Ross Houston, Scott Newman, 2016-09-15

From a global perspective aquaculture is an activity related to food production with large potential for growth Considering a continuously growing population the efficiency and sustainability of this activity will be crucial to meet the needs of protein for human consumption in the near future However for continuous enhancement of the culture of both fish and shellfish there are still challenges to overcome mostly related to the biology of the cultured species and their interaction with increasingly changing environmental factors Examples of these challenges include early sexual maturation feed meal replacement immune response to infectious diseases and parasites and temperature and salinity tolerance Moreover it is estimated that less than 10% of the total aquaculture production in the world is based on populations genetically improved by means of artificial selection Thus there is considerable room for implementing breeding schemes aimed at improving productive traits having significant economic impact By far the most economically relevant trait is growth rate which can be efficiently improved by conventional genetic selection i.e. based on breeding values of selection candidates. However, there are other important traits that cannot be measured directly on selection candidates such as resistance against infectious and parasitic agents and carcass quality traits e.g. fillet yield and meat color. However, these traits can be more efficiently improved using molecular tools to assist breeding programs by means of marker-assisted selection using a few markers explaining a high proportion of the trait variation or genomic selection using thousands of markers to estimate genomic breeding values. The development and implementation of new technologies applied to molecular biology and genomics such as next-generation sequencing methods and high-throughput genotyping platforms are allowing the rapid increase of availability of genomic resources in aquaculture species. These resources will provide powerful tools to the research community and will aid in the determination of the genetic factors involved in several biological aspects of aquaculture species. In this regard, it is important to establish discussion in terms of which strategies will be more efficient to solve the primary challenges that are affecting aquaculture systems around the world. The main objective of this Research Topic is to provide a forum to communicate recent research and implementation strategies in the use of genomics in aquaculture species with emphasis on 1) a better understanding of fish and shellfish biological processes having considerable impact on aquaculture systems and 2) the efficient incorporation of molecular information into breeding programs to accelerate genetic progress of economically relevant traits.

Biological Invasions and Its Management in China

Fanghao Wan, Mingxing Jiang, Aibin Zhan, 2017-04-25. The book discusses invasive species problems in agriculture, forests, and aquatic ecosystems, highlighting the invasive mechanisms and management of the selected invasive species. Biological invasion has become a serious global ecological and economic problem that deserves particular attention from both government officials and scientists. This volume focuses on three key scientific areas: 1) population establishment and spreading mechanisms of the selected invasive species; 2) ecology, adaptation, population growth, expansion, and evolution of invasive species; and 3) impact of bio-invasion on the ecosystem structure and function at community and ecosystem levels. The presented research will result in techniques for better management of invasive species.

Land Degradation Neutrality: Achieving SDG 15 by Forest Management Pankaj Panwar, Gopal Shukla, Jahangeer A. Bhat, Sumit Chakravarty, 2022-10-18

This edited book covers all aspects of forest deforestation and degradation in detail and their link to land degradation. Poor natural resource management is often a contributory factor in the depletion of resources, particularly like degradation of land, which hinders the goals to achieve land degradation neutrality (LDN). Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) target 15.3 states: By 2030, combat desertification, restore degraded land and soil, including land affected by desertification, drought, and floods, and strive to achieve a land degradation neutral world. To achieve the set goals, a comprehensive multidirectional approach is required involving policymakers, field functionaries, researchers, and above all, educators. The book compiles the field experiences and wisdom of some of the best researchers and authors working in the field of land degradations for quite a long time The objective of the book is to disseminate the status of land degradation the importance of achieving land degradation and share success stories of reclaiming Land degradation and suggests means and ways of achieving land degradation neutrality This book act as a repository of knowledge on Land degradation neutrality for students researchers and practitioners and policy planners
