Three Early Modern Physicians: Hippolytus Guarinonius and the Brothers Felix and Thomas Platter M.A. Katritzky,2016-12-05 While the writings of early modern medical practitioners habitually touch on performance and ceremony few illuminate them as clearly as the Protestant physicians Felix Platter and Thomas Platter the Younger who studied in Montpellier and practiced in their birth town of Basle or the Catholic physician Hippolytus Guarinonius who was born in Trent trained in Padua and practiced in Hall near Innsbruck During his student years and brilliant career as early modern Basle s most distinguished municipal court and academic physician Felix Platter built up a wide network of private religious and aristocratic patients His published medical treatises and private journal record his professional encounters with them as a healer They also offer numerous vivid accounts of theatrical events experienced by Platter as a scholar student and gifted semi professional musician and during his Grand Tour and long medical career Here Felix Platter s accounts many unavailable in translation are examined together with relevant extracts from the journals of his younger brother Thomas Platter and Guarinonius s medical and religious treatises Thomas Platter is known to Shakespeare scholars as the Swiss Grand Tourist who recorded a 1599 London performance of Julius Caesar and Guarinonius s descriptions of quack performances represent the earliest substantial written record of commedia dell arte lazzi or comic stage business These three physicians records of ceremony festival theatre and marketplace diversions are examined in detail with particular emphasis on the reactions of respectable medical practitioners to healing performers and the performance of healing Taken as a whole their writings contribute to our understanding of many aspects of European theatrical culture and its complex interfaces with early modern healthcare in carnival and other routine manifestations of the Christian festive year in the extraordinary performance and ceremony of court festivals and above all in the rarely welcomed intrusions of quacks and other itinerant performers Between the Lines Michael Anthony,Joan F. Visualizing the Text Lauren Beck, Christina Ionescu, 2017-05-01 This volume presents in depth and contextualized analyses of a wealth of visual materials These documents provide viewers with a mesmerizing and informative glimpse into how the early modern world was interpreted by image makers and presented to viewers during a period that spans from manuscript culture to the age of caricature The premise of this collection responds to a fundamental question how are early modern texts objects and systems of knowledge imaged and consumed through bimodal hybrid or intermedial products that rely on both words and pictures to convey meaning The twelve contributors to this collection go beyond traditional lines of inquiry into word and image interaction to deconstruct visual dynamics and politics to show how images were shaped manipulated displayed and distributed to represent the material world to propagate official and commercial messages to support religious practice and ideology or to embody relations of power These chapters are anchored in various theoretical and disciplinary points of departure such as the history of collections and collecting literary theory and criticism the histories of science art history and visual culture word and image studies as well as print culture and book illustration Authors draw upon a wide range of visual material hitherto insufficiently explored and placed in context in some cases hidden in museums and archives or previously assessed only from a disciplinary standpoint that favored either the image or the text but not both in relation to each other They include manuscript illuminations representing compilers and collections frontispieces and other accompanying plates published in catalogues and museographies astronomical diagrams mixed pictographic alphabetic accounting documents Spanish baroque paintings illustrative frontispieces or series inspired by or designed for single novels or anthologies anatomical drawings featured in encyclopedic publications visual patterns of volcanic formations engravings representing the New World that accompany non fictional travelogues commonplace books that interlace text and images and graphic satire Geographically the collection covers imperial centers Great Britain France the Netherlands and Spain as well as their colonial periphery New France Mexico Central America South America in particular Brazil parts of Africa and the island of Ceylon Emblematic and thought provoking these images are only fragments of the multifaceted and comprehensive visual mosaic created during the early modern period but their consideration has far reaching implications
