

Literary Analysis: Lord of the Flies

The rash is also another symbol for failure or breakdown of society in the world outside. Another literary term, Gilding uses diction to create tension and reinforces his theme and tone with use of specific words. Gilding uses colors such as pink to symbolize particular things such as innocence, as shown in the piglets and the island. The word yellow makes the reader think of the sun, enlightenment and Ralph; the words black and red bring to mind evil, blood and Jack. Gilding also uses imagery to describe the scenery and the SETI nag. For example "there was a strip of weed-strewn beach that was almost as firm s a road.

A kind of glamour was spread over them and the scene and they were conscious of the glamour and made happy by it. "(25). "All round him the long scar smashed into the jungle was a bath of heat" (7). "Suddenly Piggy was a-bubble with decorous Gilding using the word bubble could have been use to describe Piggy's appearance, you imagine how Piggy looks like; the shape of his body, but it could be also to symbolize how big his excitement was. Another one is a metaphor "The sand, trembling beneath the heat haze concealed many figures in its miles of length... (18) This metaphor epic's the blazing heat of the island these kids had to deal with. Irony is also uses in Lord in the Flies for example the survivors of the plane crash are boys evacuated from a battle zone in a world war. However, the society they form eventually breaks down, and the children go to war with one another. Another one is that Piggy's eyesight is weak, but his insight is strong. In Chapter 1, Ralph blows the conch which attracts the attention of several boys whom start to congregate on the beach. Moments after, a large group of kids march onto the beach to join the initial group of boys.

Gilding uses the adaptor, "The creature was a party of boys" (19) to describe the crowd on the beach. Another literary term was the atmosphere, it was a happy, light mood for most of chapter 1, as the boys were excited to be on their own without parents doing what they want. All these literary terms advance the plot in a certain order by introducing characters or showing the imagery in the plot. Chapter 2 Throughout Chapter 2 Fire on the Mountain, Gilding uses literary devices to advance the plot or develop a theme.

The first example, In Chapter 2 when the boys succeed in creating a fire with Piggy's glasses, the resulting blaze is scribed more than once as a "beard of flame" (41) Gilding uses "beard" to describe the arced shape of the flames rising up into the night sky. Gilding uses the metaphor to visualize the rest of the face that should accompany the flaming beard. One could take this suggestion further and imagine that the fire brings out original, wicked attribute in the boys, stripping them of the trappings of civilization and impelling them to act on savage instincts.
